

Swift Response Is Given Plea Of Roosevelt

Move Follows Announcement of Plan To Supply England Oil.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. WASHINGTON, May 1.—In swift response to a request by President Roosevelt, commercial airlines and private citizens tonight placed 20 to 30 transport-type aircraft at the service of Britain in her struggle against the Axis powers.

This move followed by a few hours a government announcement that 50 big American tankers were being made ready to carry oil supplies vital to the British.

On Tuesday President Roosevelt announced that he had requested Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, to comb the available planes in the ranks of private American concerns and individuals and see how many could be bought.

Jones' Letter.

Today Jones wrote the President:

"I have your letter of the 29th, requesting that I arrange to secure from the air transport industry and from private owners a substantial number of planes of transport type for allocation by you to the democracies under the lease-lend act.

"I am pleased to advise that we have contacted the principal air line officials and owners of private planes, and, without exception, they have indicated a willingness to comply with your request.

"A substantial number of planes will be delivered within the next three days."

Jones gave no figures but one of his assistants estimated that the number of planes to be turned over in the next three days would be about 20 to 30. The airlines could not spare any more at this time without curtailment of service, this official said. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has said that 17,351 civil aircraft were registered in the United States on January 1, 1941, of which 358 were transports used by airlines.

May Haul Pilots.

There was some speculation that a number of the planes might be pressed into service carrying pilots from Britain to Newfoundland. Warplanes newly made on this side of the Atlantic are being flown from Newfoundland to Britain, and the pilots who ferry them across frequently return by boat. The 50 tankers to be placed at the service of Britain total about 500,000 tons. Representatives of almost all American tanker operators came here this afternoon to talk over the aid plan with commission officials.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, commission chairman, appealed for co-operation, saying all American industry was being called upon to make sacrifices. He quickly added, however, that the tankers must be provided—by requisitioning, if necessary.

Convoys Demanded.

Among other developments today, the secretary of the first time an open demand that the American Navy be assigned to convoy duty, at least within the western hemisphere.

The demand was made by Senator Guffey, Democrat, Pennsylvania, an administration man, who asserted that the risks involved were justified by the "peril" that confronts the nation. He was challenged at once by Senator Tobey, Republican, New Hampshire, who announced that he would present his anticongress resolution as a rider to pending legislation and insist upon a roll-call vote.

Freighters Next.

The tankers, the Maritime Commission announced, are to be assigned to their new duties within a few days, in quick compliance with President Roosevelt's request for 2,000,000 tons of shipping to be used in this nation's program of "all out aid to the democracies." As soon as the tanker transaction is out of the way, it was said, the question of providing freighters will be considered.

Under present plans, the tankers will remain under American registry. They will not go into the war zones, but instead haul oil from South American countries to North Atlantic ports, where the cargo will be pumped into British tankers for the rest of the journey.

Georgia Power Pay Increased 100 Per Cent In Wage Pact

Two-Year Agreement Gives $175,000 More to Electricians.

Officials of the Georgia Power Company and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) yesterday signed an agreement calling for $175,000 in pay increases for 2,000 electrical workers.

Local unions in Atlanta, Athens, Augusta, Columbus, Macon and Rome are affected by the agreement, which is retroactive to March 1, when the previous agreement expired.

The contract is for a two-year period, but provides wage negotiations can be reopened at the end of one year. Included in the total wage increase, which is a general 5 per cent raise, are wage adjustments of $25,000 a year.

Power Company President P. S. Arkwright said the company's electrical workers would receive approximately $3,250,000 in wages in 1941. About 2,000 will participate in the payroll. Nearly 1,500 are members of the IBEW.

Arkwright asserted the agreement recognizes the IBEW as sole bargaining agent for the electrical workers and all provisions affecting hours of work, rates of pay and working conditions apply to union and nonunion employees alike.

Journeymen linemen are to receive $173 a month in Atlanta and $167 a month in other towns. Other wage scales vary with the type of employment.

Contract signers included Arkwright and W. H. Wright, power company secretary, for the company; G. X. Barker, of Birmingham, international vice president of the IBEW, and the following local presidents: S. G. Vandiver, of Rome; J. C. Roquemore, of Atlanta; C. A. Oney, of Macon; D. B. Roper, of Athens; W. F. Harden, of Columbus; R. W. Barnes, of Augusta.

Rome Calls U.S. Enemy of Axis

Attacks on Planes, Fleet Promised by Italian Press.

ROME, May 1.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini's newspaper announced today that Germany and Italy have decided to regard the United States as "a 100 per cent enemy" and warned of the danger of Axis attacks on the U. S. fleet and air force.

Italy's leading political commentator, Mario Appellus, issued the warning in an article in Il Duce's Milan newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, describing President Roosevelt's Atlantic patrol project as a "hypocritical attempt to provoke war."

The Italo-German Axis, he said, has made every effort to remain at peace with the United States but have no course now except to sink all war material shipments headed for Britain, whether or not they are protected by American warships and planes.

"Any ship loaded with arms or raw materials for Britain will be inexorably attacked by bombs and torpedoes and, if possible, sunk, whatever the nationality of the naval or air escort which is convoying it. The Axis decision is categorical and recognizes no exceptions," Appellus wrote.

He added that without this United States aid the war would have been ended long ago.

The rest of the press meanwhile accused Mr. Roosevelt of "personal methods characterizing the worst kind of dictatorship" and said the United States must react at once against his policies or be driven into war.

Virginio Gayda, writing in the Giornale D'Italia today, described the President as an undemocratic dictator who is creating a chasm between the government and the people.

W. H. Barrett, Noted Federal Judge, Is Dead

74-Year-Old Leader Succumbs at Home In Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 1.—United States Judge William H. Barrett, 74, died at his home here tonight at 11:20 o'clock after an illness of two weeks. Judge Barrett was stricken by a heart attack after addressing sessions of the Georgia Education Association several weeks ago.

Judge Barrett had been a judge of the United States court for the southern district of Georgia for 19 years, having been appointed by President Warren G. Harding on June 22, 1922.

Judge Barrett served on many occasions in the northern district court in Atlanta, presided over by United States Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

He was very popular among the Atlanta lawyers and litigants in the federal court.

One of the most important cases he tried here, according to Clint W. Hager, former United States district attorney, was the litigation growing out of the condemnation of the property on which the new post office now stands.

Several pieces of property involved in this procedure were so highly involved that it required several months of work by Judge Barrett to straighten the matter out and render a decision.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rites will be private and will follow exactly the services conducted for Judge Barrett's wife, who died in 1935. The jurist explicitly had requested this, and his instructions were to be followed in detail.

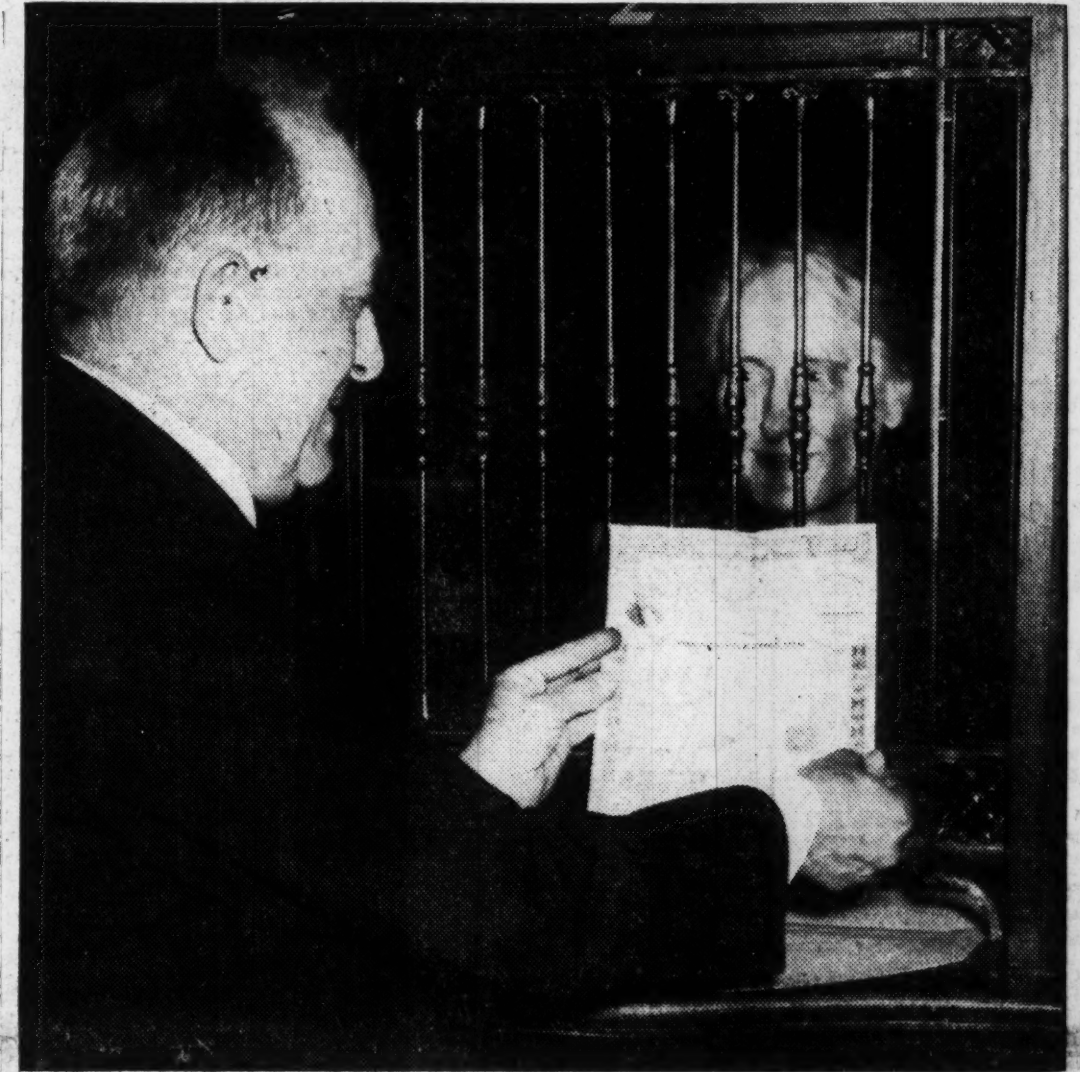

Among other cases tried in Atlanta by Judge Barrett was that of Robert E. Lee, alias "The Earl of Pelham," on a charge of using the mails to defraud. The Lee case was one of the longest trials ever conducted in a court in Georgia.

Outstanding in Judge Barrett's life was his rise from his first venture for himself as a grammar school principal, to which position

BUYS FIRST BOND—Edward S. West, Georgia Power Company employee, was first in line at the main postoffice yesterday as the new United States defense savings bonds and stamps went on sale here. He bought a $25 bond. Miss Leila K. Jones, clerk, handled the transaction. Response was enthusiastic in the city and state, officials said.

Farm Youths Flock To Great Agricultural Show in Athens

Youngsters, 14 to 20, Learn Most Advanced Methods; They're Not Planning To Leave the Country.

By W. M. HINES, Constitution Staff Writer.

ATHENS, Ga., May 1.—If there is a cry that youth is leaving the farm, it is not the Georgia farm. Not if today's tremendous Farm Day show at the College of Agriculture of the University of Georgia is indicative of what the farm youth has in mind for his future.

Youngsters from 14 years to 20 came literally from all over northeastern and central Georgia to this great institution to gain knowledge of the most advanced farming methods.

There were at least 8,000 persons here who had the unique distinction of having a chance to study and to discuss and not have to listen to speeches of politicians. Perhaps that was because this is not a political year, but even the regents (by no means to be considered in the politician class) declined to approach the microphone to express their obvious pride over the presence of so vast a throng of young folks come to see the work of the College of Agriculture.

Meaning of Gathering. To sum up the significance of this gathering today three points stand out as definitely important in the trend of Georgia agriculture.

1. There was noticeable absence of tenant farmers for this crowd was made up of owner farmers. Agricultural authorities report a definite decrease in the number of tenant farmers in the state and explain that the tenant farmer has flocked to the city for WPA or defense jobs.

2. The farm is being rapidly mechanized, not in the manner of heavy farm implements known to the vast holdings of the middle west and west, but mechanization through small units capable of doing the work on what is known as family farms, where the father and a couple of sons are the only farm hands.

3. An absence from the farm of men between 21 and 25 who either volunteered for Army service.

Officers assigned to the new districts are: Gainesville—M. L. Shadburn, division engineer; W. H. Jackson, Continued on Page 6, Column 3.

Edward S. West Is First Buyer in Defense Campaign.

Atlantans responded with enthusiasm yesterday as the new United States defense savings bonds and stamps went on sale here.

The honor of being the first person in this city to purchase one of the new bonds—through which smaller investors may participate in financing the great national defense effort—went to Edward S. West, of 66 11th street, N. E.

West, employed in the land department of the Georgia Power Company, was at a window on the Walton street side of the main Post Office building at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning—when the sales officially began.

The stamps and bonds went on sale also at the Federal annex, post office substations, banks and building and loan associations.

Ships, Convoyed If Necessary, Urged by Willkie to Aid Britain

NEW YORK, May 1.—(P)—a viewpoint expounded by Charles A. Lindbergh in a recent issue of the magazine.

His plea for ships Willkie gave as "a practical, specific plan," in reply to Lindbergh's request for plans.

Referring to Lindbergh's query as to whether "we are to leave the direction of our country to the 'experts,' who have created the greatest national debt in American history and still left us a nation unprepared in a world in the midst of war... who failed either to maintain peace or to prepare for war," Willkie responded:

"I ask: If we don't leave it to them, to whom are we to leave it under our constitutional system? Without a revolution we cannot have a different administration for four years. I certainly did all I

Churchill Free For Full-Time War Direction

Criticism Met by Merger of Transport, Shipping Duties.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, May 2.—(Friday)—In the wake of Britain's Balkan disaster, Prime Minister Winston Churchill today chose Lord Beaverbrook, dynamic minister of air production, to be virtual economic dictator and deputy prime minister of the United Kingdom.

Beaverbrook was appointed to the new portfolio of minister of state, less than a week before Prime Minister Churchill is to face parliament in a full dress debate on the British defeat in Yugoslavia and Greece and the British reverses in north Africa.

Relieved of Duties.

The post is expected to make Beaverbrook, who has been credited with stepping up Britain's airplane production to a pace required to meet the German challenge, virtual director of the production of tanks, guns and other war materials—shortage of which is largely blamed for the Balkan defeat.

To devote his time to this, he was relieved of his departmental duties in aircraft production and J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon, former minister of transport, was named his successor as minister of aircraft production.

Thus, while Beaverbrook presumably is assuming the task of directing the manifold economic phases of the war, Churchill will be free to devote his full time to military, naval and diplomatic aspects.

Seen as Successor. In some quarters, creation of Beaverbrook's new post was interpreted to mean he would be Churchill's successor should the latter leave office—this despite the fact that the short, pudgy Canada-born publisher long has been an isolationist, poles apart from the internationalism of Churchill's foreign policy.

Churchill also moved to meet another frequent criticism—charges of delays at docks where the turn around is essential to

Atlantan Back With Pathetic Tale of France

Miss McLester, Fashion Expert, Returns, Hopeful for Future.

By WILLARD COPE.

"When you run across a friend you haven't seen for, say, two weeks, you think: 'My heavens! She's been very ill.' And you'll see another, visibly thinner and paler than when you last talked with her. This goes on, time after time. And suddenly it comes over you with a horrible shock: 'These, my very friends, are slowly starving to death!'"

That is France today, unoccupied France, the straggling remnant of the proud, good-living, life-appreciating France of just a bit more than a year ago, as described upon the return home yesterday of a native Atlanta woman who has lived there for more than 20 years.

The returned traveler, Miss Anna McLester, fashion expert and style-writer under the nom de plume of "Delancey," was visibly moved by the condition of the people. Small, blue-eyed, white-haired and very animated, she conveyed the tragedy of the conquered and plundered land with small gesture, slight changes of expression and restrained emphasis of tone.

Thank America.

"Everywhere as I passed en route to Portugal, coming home because I could do no more good there, the people would point to the American tags on my baggage and say: 'Tell the American people how much we appreciate their friendship.' The Red Cross ships had just come, and the people were truly grateful."

Because of the strict censorship of press, even in so-called unoccupied France, Miss McLester was not sure her knowledge of conditions was as good as that existing in this country, which has the benefit of news from every section. However, of the sentiment of the French she was very sure.

"Today, at least 90 per cent of the people are hoping and praying for an English victory as the only hope for the restoration of the France of old. The younger men and boys are willing to fight again. They realize their country otherwise has no future."

"Of course, right after the capitulation of France, there was much feeling against the British. Since then, the people have learned how divided their nation and leaders were, and that they were betrayed at home. So the feeling against Britain has lessened."

Food Restricted.

Restrictions on food and clothing are extreme. A child of 18 months must have a police order for any new garments; a bride is permitted but two sets of sheets upon marriage; if you ask permission to purchase a new pair of shoes, a police inspector will come to your home and examine your present shoes.

"Since last October," said Miss McLester, with quiet eloquence, "I had three pounds of potatoes when I left Nice. You are allowed a pound of sugar a month, maybe a quarter of a pound of butter for the same period. You see the children's eyes growing weak from malnutrition. Your heart grows very sad."

But France has the spirit of survival and will live through these, the worst trials of her long history, to lead the world again in fashions in art, in smartness and gaiety, she is sure.

"There is that in the French character," she said, "which tells me here is a country which will not die."

She came home on the Excambion, of the Export-Import Line, leaving Lisbon, Portugal, April 5. Three nights out, she heard the ship stop in response to cryptic commands sent by "blinkers" from a naval vessel near by.

"Next day we learned the ship which stopped us was German. I didn't know it at the time. But I can tell you I did not sleep that night. I have made 30 crossings. This was the worst."

Vanished Era.

Miss McLester recalls an era in Atlanta now gone, when as a child she attended Miss Hanna's school on Cain street. Later she was a student at what was then called the Georgia Military and Industrial School at Milledgeville—now the Georgia State College for Women. There she developed her talent for design of dresses, which founded her career.

For 20 years she was a stylist for Marshall Field in Paris. More recently she has been along the Riviera, at Nice, at Cannes, at Monte Carlo. She attended the last great "gala" in mid-August, 1939, when Monaco Ville, Monaco, was alive with jewels and colorful costumes, and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were the stellar attractions.

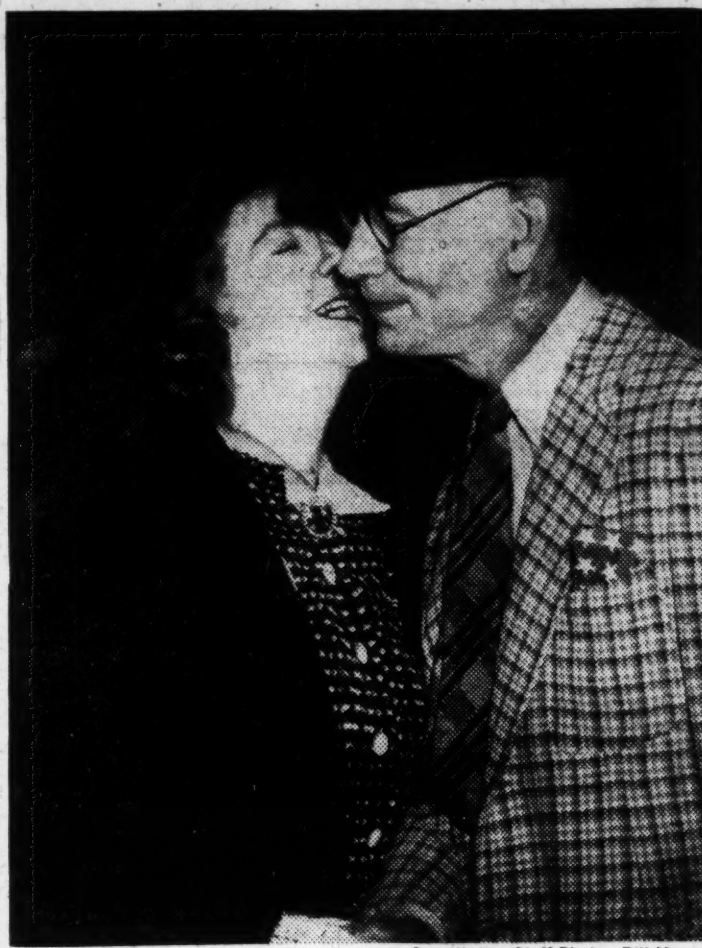

"One of her most valued mementos is a sheet of paper bearing the signatures of an entire company of youthful Alpine Chasseurs thanking her for gifts of chocolate, of cigarettes, of soap and other comforts."

"All of these men are now prisoners in Germany," she observed. "If I could still be helping them, I wouldn't have come home."

Her half-brother, Clifton Brown, welcomed her at the Terminal station. She will remain for a while at his home, 482 Peoples street, S. W.

"When the war is over," Miss McLester promised herself, "I'll be back in Paris helping to produce the world's great style trends again."

TO NAME TEACHERS. BLUE RIDGE, Ga., May 1.—O. R. Guthrie, Fannin county superintendent of schools, announces that the county board of education will select teachers for the 1941-42 term next Tuesday. Already a large number of applications have been filed, the superintendent stated.

"FRANCE STARVES"—Miss Anna McLester, native Atlantan, for 20 years a French fashion expert, reached her old home yesterday and was greeted by her brother, Clifton Brown. Malnutrition everywhere is visible in France, she said.

W. H. Barrett, Noted Federal Judge, Is Dead

he was elected at the age of 19, to the bench of the United States court.

Born in 1866.

He spent virtually his entire life in Augusta, his native city. Born September 10, 1866, the son of William Hale and Susanne Rhind Barrett, he traced his family back to pre-Revolution days as Augusta people on both sides of his house.

Mr. Barrett began his schooling in the elementary institutions of Augusta, including the Academy of Richmond county. For two years he went to the Bellevue High School, near Lynchburg, Va., from which he went to the University of Georgia. He was graduated from the state university in 1885 when he was but 18 years old. It was in the following fall he obtained his first job, being elected principal of the Central (then Sibley) Grammar school at Augusta. He taught for two years, reading law at odd times in the office of the late Major James C. C. Black.

Admitted to the bar in November, 1887, he practiced continuously until 1922, when President Harding appointed him federal judge for the southern district of Georgia. Judge Barrett served as judge of the recorder's court in Augusta from 1894 to 1898, vacating that office to become city attorney. During his tenure of the former position, his quiet presence and honest open-mindedness lent the court dignity to a degree seldom attained by the lesser tribunals.

Made Federal Judge.

When the Georgia & Florida Railroad was organized, Judge Barrett was chosen its general counsel, which position he retained until elevated to the federal judgeship. In 1916 he formed a partnership with James M. Hull Jr. under the name Barrett & Hull.

As judge of the United States court Judge Barrett won the unstinted admiration of lawyer and layman alike, and was known widely for his fearlessness, honesty, and conscientious interpretations of the law. His court has been pointed to as a model of decorum, and, at the same time, as a bar of genuine justice.

Judge Barrett was a member of the S. A. E. fraternity at the University of Georgia and won distinction there by earning membership in the honorary Phi Beta Kappa fraternity. In later years he was honored with the presidency of the alumni society of the university.

Identified prominently in virtually every progressive movement in his home community, it is probable that his most noteworthy accomplishment along this line was his handling of relief work following the great conflagration of 1916, when a large portion of the business and residential districts were swept away and left thousands of Augusta families destitute and homeless. He directed the work that resulted in raising sufficient money to allay all known cases of suffering and he directed also the actual work of relief.

He was married on October 19, 1892, to Miss Ella C. Barnes, daughter of the late George C. Barnes. The only child of the union was George B. Barrett, who is a member of the firm which succeeded that founded by his father.

Judge Barrett was a member of St. Paul Episcopal church. He was a lifelong Democrat and his chief hobby was golf.

U. S. Jury Convicts 21 Italian Seamen

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 1. (AP)—The captain and 20 seamen of the Italian freighter Confidenza were convicted today of sabotage on indictments growing out of the disabling of their ship March 28 while it was anchored in the St. Johns river here.

The master, Captain Vittorio Schenone, also was convicted on a conspiracy count.

The federal court jury required an hour and 35 minutes to reach a verdict.

Judge Louis W. Strum indicated sentences would not be passed until after completion of the trial of the captain and 38 seamen of the Ircania, another Italian ship damaged here the same day and later seized by the Coast Guard along with other Italian and German ships in United States ports. The Ircania trial was started immediately.

Elbert Farmers Plant 1-Variety Cotton Seeds

ELBERTON, Ga., May 1.—Cotton planters are working full time in Elbert county now and just about every one is using the same kind of seed.

County Farm Agent Webb Tatum said Elbert county had been a one-variety cotton so long that farmers have no doubt of it being "a good thing, good for better prices and bigger yields." Tatum explained that the growers had selected a cotton suited to the section and that practically all used the best seed of this variety they could get. Most of them treat their seed before planting and use better fertilizer.

Prison Work Approved for Leg-Breakers

State Commission, Legislative Group Condones Dallas Practice.

The State Prison and Parole Commission and penitentiary committees of the senate and house yesterday condoned the treatment of prisoners at the Dallas camp following an investigation into charges that three of the inmates were required to work with broken legs.

In reply to pictures in The Constitution showing the prisoners at work breaking rock and with their legs in casts, members of the commission issued a report saying they were "of the opinion that the treatment accorded the prisoners with self-inflicted broken legs was not inhuman, but on the contrary was beneficial to the discipline of the inmates in the camp and should serve to prevent further self-inflicted injuries among the inmates for the purpose of getting out of work."

"Not Inhuman." Simultaneously, the penitentiary committees of the house and senate submitted another report "whitewashing" the Dallas incident. Their report said in part: "We have investigated the rumors and publicity given this camp by the Atlanta newspapers in regard to working prisoners with broken legs and we find that the work these prisoners are doing at the camp is not inhuman and each prisoner admitted to us that they broke their legs to keep from working. They also admitted that the warden of this camp has not mistreated them."

The committees' report went further and said "this method of handling this type of prisoner is the best way that it could be done for the sake of handling other prisoners in this state."

Testimony Released.

The three prisoners involved in the investigation were listed as Edward Pressley, 23; Luther Masters, 19, and Percy Mitchell, 21. Clem Rainey, chairman of the commission, released a copy of the testimony taken at the hearing before members of the commission and the legislative committees.

Q. E. Worthington, warden at the Dallas camp, and Dr. J. I. Simmons, camp physician, testified the prisoners whose legs were in casts were put to work to get them out in the sunshine and fresh air. Worthington told the investigating group that the prisoners were in the yard and not in the rock quarry and contended they broke only about a gallon of rock per day.

Needed Lesson.

Dr. Simmons testified rock-breaking did not aggravate the physical condition of the inmates and added:

"If they had a chance I believe they would break their legs again just to keep from working. I figured they would have to have some kind of lesson to prevent further breaks. I believe it was about as good a way to break this thing up as could have been thought of. It is a great expense to have men lying in. Leg-breaking is a topic of discussion between prisoners. They want to lie up."

As to how the prisoners allegedly broke their legs, Worthington said two or three tales had been told.

Denies Whippings.

"Some said they put their leg on a block of wood, wrapped another block in a blanket and let the second come down on it. Others said they put their leg folded on the blocks and let their weight fall on it."

Representative H. B. Smith, a member of the house committee, asked Worthington what excuse the prisoners gave for breaking their legs.

"To keep from working; that the guards were whipping them, but that wasn't so," he said. "Other convicts said the guards were not whipping them."

The warden said he worked with the previous Talmadge administration, but was discharged by former Governor Rivers. He said he did not want to go to Dallas, but that W. E. Wilburn, chairman of the State Highway Board, insisted that he go.

At the end of the testimony, Representative Smith recommended that the warden continue his present method of handling prisoners and added he thought the Prison and Parole Commission and the State Highway Board should back him up.

Dr. Gallup Says:

Sinking Wouldn't Fire Public

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
(Copyright, 1941)

PRINCETON, N. J., May 1.—A question uppermost in the minds of many Americans today is what will happen if an American warship is sunk by German submarines in the course of patrolling the neutrality zone, or possibly in the course of conveying ships to Britain. Would this make the country want to get into a "shooting" war with Germany?

Many who have opposed convoys have argued that the sinking of a warship would inflame public opinion to the point where the country would demand war. To try to discover in advance how likely this would be, the American Institute of Public Opinion has conducted a nation-wide study of sentiment at the present time on this important question.

Results of Poll.

The results indicate that the majority would not be in favor of going to war even if American ships were sunk.

Two questions were put to voters in the study—one dealing with sinking of warships, and the other with sinking of merchant ships, with the following results:

"If the United States Navy is used to guard merchant ships crossing the Atlantic, and some of our warships are sunk by German submarines, would you be in favor of going to war against Germany?"

Yes 40%
No 50%
No opinion 10%
"If the United States sends merchant ships to Britain with war materials, and some of them are sunk by German submarines, would you be in favor of going to war against Germany?"

Yes 34%
No 58%

Exact Circumstances.

Of course the exact circumstances of any sinking—the place where it occurred, the number of lives lost and other factors—might alter opinion at the time the incident occurred. But the interesting fact is that, as of today, one-half of the country's voters say they wouldn't want to get into a "shooting" war even if a warship is sunk. The number is even larger—58 per cent—in the case of the sinking of a merchant ship.

The majority argument in both instances—as revealed in an analysis of reasons given by voters—is that the country would naturally expect trouble and would discount in advance the importance of any sinking. The predominant feeling is expressed in the typical comment:

"We should not blame Germany if she tries to sink those ships."

Roosevelt Asks 20 Million for Road to Canal

Hull Proposes U. S. Pay Two-Thirds of Highway's Cost.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asked congress today to authorize a $20,000,000 appropriation for construction of an inter-American highway as far as the Panama canal.

He sent to congress a report by Secretary Hull, along with a draft of legislation, proposing that the United States pay two-thirds of the cost of construction of the road through the Central American countries. Among other things, Hull said the highway would be valuable for defense.

The road already has been completed to a point south of Mexico City, but to reach the canal it must cross the difficult terrain of Central American jungles.

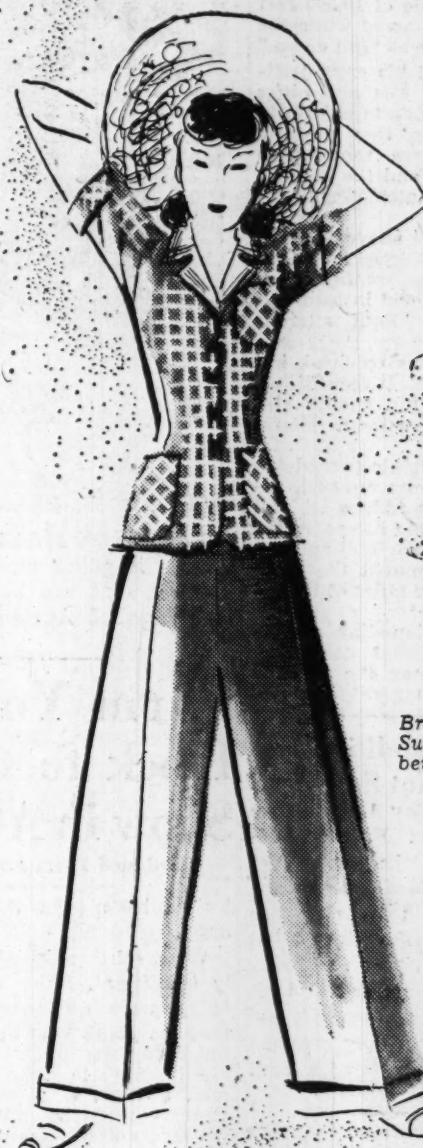

The President confined himself to a brief message to congress in which he commended Hull's report to the favorable attention of the legislators.

That's the risk we incur. That is the natural consequence. It would be hard luck, but what else could we expect?"

Two Canadian Aviators Land Big Ship With Ailerons Torn Off

Great Britain's Ministry of Aircraft Production Describes Astounding Feat as "One of the Greatest Epics of Flying."

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—Two Canadian flyers maneuvered a huge flying boat for six hours over the Atlantic after its ailerons had been torn off and brought it safely into a British harbor in what the ministry of aircraft production said today was "one of the greatest epics of flying."

Congress Votes Largest Naval Appropriation

Record Peacetime Money Bill Provides More Than 3 Billions.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(UP)—Congress today sent to the White House the largest peacetime naval appropriation bill in the nation's history. It provides $3,416,521,750 or Navy Department operations during the coming fiscal year, of which $1,515,000,000 is to continue construction of the two-ocean navy and $500,000,000 is for naval aircraft.

Legislative action on the measure was completed when the Senate adopted the conference report, approved by the House earlier this week. It included a compromise clause permitting the Navy to purchase food and clothing outside the country when domestic goods cannot be obtained in reasonable amounts and quality at a reasonable price.

The ailerons (movable surfaces of the wing which provide lateral control) were ripped away by wind action after the robot pilot of the 15-ton patrol plane jammed. RAF Flight Lieutenant J. G. Fleming, D. F. C., of Calgary, and Flying Officer J. J. Meikle, of Toronto, with two flight engineers and two civilian radio operators, were flying the Catalina (Consolidated) PBV flying boat from Bermuda at an altitude of 18,500 feet when the robot jammed while the starboard aileron was "full down."

As Fleming and his crew jettisoned flares, tool kits and other equipment in desperate efforts to stabilize the plane, they plunged to 800 feet, where the second aileron broke off and the balance of the plane was automatically restored.

Leveling off just above the water, the pilots considered an SOS, but Fleming was confident of reaching England and instead signaled by radio, "Both ailerons gone."

This message was received, but nobody believed it. It seemed impossible that so big a ship still could be flying without lateral control.

Fleming and Meikle turned the machine from south to east, although use of the rudder without lateral control might have sent the ship into a flat and fatal spin. They finally brought the plane down within three miles of the intended mooring.

"Since this astounding flight," the ministry account concluded, "Fleming has flown the Atlantic once and Meikle twice."

Kreiser's Condition Called 'Not So Good'

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—The condition of Fritz Kreiser, 66-year-old violinist who was injured by a truck on Madison avenue Saturday, was said to be "not so good" in a bulletin issued at Roosevelt hospital today.

An earlier bulletin had said his condition was "unchanged" and that he had not yet fully regained consciousness. He suffered a skull fracture and other injuries.

MODERN MACHINERY—Along with other things, the farm is going modern, and the exhibit of farming machinery at the Farm Day show, held yesterday at the College of Agriculture, University of Georgia, proved ice or have been taken in the draft.

While all three points are highly significant, farm leaders here today were quick to point out that the youth who has gone into the Army, particularly a mechanized Army, to drive a truck or man a tank, is going to be no stranger when he comes home to the mechanized farm that dad and his younger brothers are getting ready for him in anticipation of the days of peace.

There was a noticeable lack of discussion about cotton here today. Rather there was more talk of diversified crops, of oats and hay and barley and cover crops, of poultry and livestock and what they can do to lift from around the neck of the Georgia farmer the oppressive load which he carried when he depended upon a single crop. The only time that cotton was mentioned publicly was when Chancellor S. V. Sanford explained that Dr. Joseph J. Jenkins, of Hartwell, and a member of the Board of Regents, had the distinction of producing 600 bales of cotton on 500 acres, when ordinarily a farmer is lucky to get that many bales from twice that number of acres.

There was more interest when John J. Cumming, of Seminole county, also a regent, told the crowd that the college of agriculture is the owner of the most valuable Jersey bull in the world. That is not an overstatement, Mr. Cumming emphasized, nor just bull, but rather $25,000 worth of bull.

The beautiful animal was paraded before the crowd. Regent Cumming spoke with authority, Chancellor Sanford explained, because he is the owner of the finest band of Hereford cattle east of the Mississippi river, and he has placed Georgia high among the cattle-breeding states. And it was with no little pride that Chancellor Sanford explained that Regent Cumming was once a student at this same college of agriculture.

Dr. Milton P. Jarnagin, head of the department of animal husbandry, explained the importance of livestock in Georgia. He said: "The increasing cash return from livestock in Georgia is a source of gratification to all students of economics and to the well-wishers for the happiness and prosperity of the people."

Cash Sale. "For the past 12 years the cash sale of livestock and livestock products amount to 19.1 per cent of the total cash farm income. For the past three years, the sale of livestock and livestock products has amounted to 24.3 per cent of the total farm income."

"In 1929 the cash income from the sale of livestock was $35,211,000 whereas in 1933, at the depth of the depression, the cash income from livestock was only $13,608,000. During the six-year period, the cash income from livestock has increased more than two and a half times."

"In considering these figures it should be clearly kept in mind that the cash income does not take into account the amount of livestock products consumed on farms. This means more to the farms than actual money. In 1933, the value of all livestock sold and that consumed on farms was $36,240,000, where the gross income from livestock in 1939 was $73,395,000."

TETTER
Try the clearing-up help of Black and White Ointment's antiseptic action. More than twenty-five million packages of this ointment sold in the last 23 years. To remove grime, oil, film, use mild superfatted Black and White Skin Soap.

$25,000 BULL—This registered Jersey bull, owned by the State College of Agriculture, is valued at $25,000, John J. Cumming, of Seminole county, a member of the board of regents of the State University System, told farmers attending the farm show at Athens yesterday. The bull is considered one of the finest in the country.

or practically double what it was for the earlier period."

To get a cross section of what this big gathering here means expressions from some of the leaders give a fairly clear picture. Said R. H. Driftmier, head of the Agricultural Engineering Department: "This mechanization of the farm means that the farm youth is not content to follow a mule down one row of cotton when he can go down several with a machine."

Extension Director.

Walter H. Brown, director of the extension division of the university: "We are getting more mail inquiries from young men and we have found that when people go back home from these demonstrations our volume of inquiries from their neighbors goes up."

Said Dr. Harmon Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia: "It seems at last that our efforts to do something of benefit for the young men and women of Georgia is bearing fruit. We are intensely gratified."

And General Sandy Beaver, of Gainesville, chairman of the board of regents as well as president of the Riverside Military Academy, said a whole lot when he summed it up: "These boys on the farms are going to feed my boys with the guns and between the two of them we can't lose."

Beaverbrook Is Given New Cabinet Post

speedy land movement of supplies by merging the ministries of transport and shipping under one head, Frederick James Leathers. The new ministry will be called the ministry for wartime communications.

So far as is known, the changes would not affect the war cabinet. Beaverbrook, as aircraft production minister, was a member of war cabinet, but that does not necessarily mean Moore-Brabazon would be taken in.

The new title given to Beaverbrook was chosen because it was essential to find a non-departmental designation. In such a category are the lord privy seal, lord president of the council, and minister without portfolio.

expected to answer some critics who have argued that the war cabinet members are too burdened with departmental tasks to give the fullest attention to the broader problems of war.

Beaverbrook now will be confronted with the task of co-ordinating industrial priorities, and increasing tank and other war machine production.

Other government changes included the appointment of Minister of Shipping R. H. Cross as high commissioner to Australia, and the trade of jobs between Colonel J. J. Llewellyn and Frederick Montague. Llewellyn becomes parliamentary secretary to the ministry of transport and Montague parliamentary secretary to the secretary of aircraft production.

To Be Baron.

It was understood Leathers would be created a baron. That means he will sit in the house of lords and leave Llewellyn as spokesman for the combined ministry in the house of commons.

Leathers, who began his career as a 5-shilling or dollar-a-week office boy, is the first man ever put in control of the entire British shipping and transport services, including railroads, ports, and highways.

Montague, 64-year-old self-educated laborite member of parliament who started as a newsboy, formerly was undersecretary of state for air in the labor government from 1929 to 1931 and was appointed to the transport ministry a year ago.

Two-Thirds BEF Lost, Nazis Claim

BERLIN, Friday, May 2.—(UP)—German military headquarters believe that two-thirds of the British Expeditionary Force in Greece was lost during the futile attempt to halt the German blitzkrieg, and the evacuation that followed, the official DNB news agency said last night.

(British military headquarters have announced that 80 per cent—approximately 48,000 of the expeditionary force was removed safely.)

"Immense" numbers of British imperial prisoners, mostly Australians and New Zealanders, were reported captured at Mount Olympus, Thermopylae and on the Peloponnese. The number of British dead has not yet been estimated, DNB said.

Britain Urges U. S. To Freeze Assets of Axis

'Blacklist' Is Also Asked for Firms Aiding Nazi Agents.

LONDON, May 1.—(UP)—Britain today urged the United States to freeze Axis assets in America and to "blacklist" firms whose profits allegedly are used to finance the activities of Nazi agents in North and South America.

The plea was made by Dr. Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare, in a talk to American correspondents. Citing sabotage to Axis ships in United States ports and the strikes in American defense industries, Dalton said:

"It is not a long guess that some of these funds have been used by the enemy for their own purposes."

At the same time the ministry for economic warfare for the first time released the names of some firms in the United States which allegedly have been supplying the requirements of German firms in South America since the latter's trade with Germany has been cut off by the British blockade.

The ministry said that firms organized in the United States for this purpose before the war included subsidiaries of the I. G. Farbenindustrie, the great German chemical trust; the Schering Corporation, of Bloomfield, N. J.; the Hugo Stinnes Corporation, the Transocean Coal & Transport Company, the Pioneer Import Corporation, of New York, and Steel Union Sheet Piling, Inc.

England May Arm Planes Being Ferried

Move Seen as Effective Action Against Nazi Submarines.

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—Because the crews flying American warplanes across the Atlantic frequently spot German submarines, the ministry of aircraft production may consider equipping the service to fight.

With an increasing number of four-motored bombers and big sea-going flying boats stretching their wings from Newfoundland to England there is an increasing opportunity for "afternoon" as the ferry service is called, to attack U-boats.

It is reported that several ships have been saved from torpedo attack merely by these unarmed planes roaring down on half-submerged U-boats and causing them to crash dive.

It is thought by experts here that if the long-range American planes, which easily have spanned the Atlantic with but one loss since October, were "bombed up" they would become valuable auxiliaries to the RAF and the navy's destroyers and corvettes in protecting Britain's supply line.

Big four-motored bombers are averaging eight hours and 45 minutes from Newfoundland to their English reception bases.

Betsy Ross House May Change Owners

PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—(AP)—The Betsy Ross house, where the famous Colonial seamstress is said to have made the first American flag, may change owners because of unpaid taxes.

That was disclosed today when Mayor Robert E. Lamberton transmitted to city council a proposal that the municipality take over the shrine and assume taxes accumulated in a 35-year period.

The proposal was made by the American Flag House and Betsy Ross Memorial Association, which offered to give up title to the property if the city would pay unpaid real estate taxes, totaling approximately $13,500.

No Unemployment Pay for Strikers

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 1.—(AP)—John D. Petree, state director of industrial relations, said tonight "It is my intention to deny all claims for unemployment compensation" filed by those thrown into idleness by shut-down of coal mines during negotiation of a new wage agreement between United Mine Workers of America (CIO) and operators.

Earlier, Petree said "almost all" of the state's 21,000 idle miners had applied for unemployment compensation.

Miss Loula Dunn, state welfare commissioner, announced meanwhile tonight that the Federal Surplus Marketing Administration had advised that "needy families of miners are eligible" to receive food grants.

Health Called First Line of U. S. Defense

Hotel Men of 12 States Hear Food Expert at Rally Here.

Health is our first line of defense and now more than ever should be given our first consideration because of its importance in national defense, Miss Marie Casteen, food research authority for the world's largest hotel system, told more than 400 southern hotel executives and equipment men yesterday at the opening session of the eighth annual All-Southern Hotel Exposition at the Biltmore.

"Nutrition is a modern social problem," she said. "The government realizes this and the men it is training for defense are being fed properly. I am told that those in the Army will be better fed than 80 per cent of our people."

She emphasized the importance of proper feeding and pointed out that the lack of proper foods has caused the Army considerable concern because of the unfitness of thousands for military training. J. Charles Poe, conservation commissioner of Tennessee, urged the hotel men to join in the establishment of a central advertising body to attract tourist trade to this section.

He pointed out that in Tennessee a recent campaign in which $18,000 was spent brought the state 70,000 tourists and that they spent $1,250,000.

Poe said selection of the right advertising medium was important and praised the use of newspapers and magazines in this connection, pointing out they had been proved good media.

The exposition, which will extend through tomorrow as an annual feature of the Georgia Hotel Association, has attracted hotel men and equipment men from 12 southern states.

L. C. Moseley, president of the Georgia association, presided over the opening sessions.

Today's Program. Today's program will be featured by a forum on "Protection and Promotion of Hotels Through Organization." Speakers will include Franklin Moore, president of the American Hotel Association; Major Alfred Levine, of Tennessee, an authority on hotel law; D. O. Buesse, president of the Atlanta Hotel Association, and Garret Andrews, of Jacksonville, Florida.

Other program features include a luncheon at the Georgian Terrace at which 1941 officers of the state association will be elected; a dinner-dance at the Ansley hotel; a cocktail party at the Biltmore and a business session on "Selling."

State Senator H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, who was scheduled to speak yesterday, was ill.

Alcatraz Probe Is Sought by Federal Jury

Convinced of 'Unbelievably Inhuman' Conditions—Foreman.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 1.—(AP) A federal court jury which Wednesday night found Henri Young, 29, guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the killing of a fellow convict at Alcatraz, today asked Washington officials to investigate conditions at the island prison.

Paul Verdier, San Francisco merchant and foreman of the jury, disclosed that the six men and six women on the panel said in the petition they were "convinced that conditions in this federal prison are unbelievably inhuman."

Verdier said the petition was telegraphed to Attorney General Jackson, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; James V. Bennett, director of the Bureau of Prisons, and the California congressional delegation.

The verdict against Young, Spokane, Wash., bank robber charged with the murder of Rufus Roy McCain, another bank robber from Oklahoma City, carries a maximum penalty of three years.

The defense contended that Young stabbed McCain in the prison tailor shop last December 3 while mentally upset after brutal treatment in the prison's solitary cells, and in fear of McCain, who had threatened five years of a 20-year sentence.

Fellow convicts testified in support of his testimony that guards brutally beat men in isolation cells.

The convict witnesses, among them Harmon M. Waley, kidnaper of youthful George Weyerhaeuser, of Tacoma, and other notorious criminals, told of being beaten and placed in strait jackets.

Young said he had been in solitary cells continually from September, 1937, to November, 1940, and that he was stripped nude, deprived of soap, tobacco and toothbrush, and underfed.

Warden James A. Johnston testified the prisoner had been put in solitary and isolation cells for rule infractions, one sentence being 11 months for an attempted escape.

Young stabbed McCain a few days after his release from solitary.

Defense Board Opens Hearing In G. M. Dispute

Wages Understood To Be Major Issue for Mediation.

By The Associated Press. The Defense Mediation Board began hearings in Washington yesterday on the contract dispute between the United Automobile Workers (CIO) and General Motors Corporation.

The question of wages was understood to be the top issue as the federal officials sat down with management and labor representatives in an effort to avert a threatened strike in 61 G. M. plants employing about 160,000.

The union is asking 10 cents an hour increase. The management, in reply, offered 2 cents for hourly employees and larger raises for some groups of skilled workers, though C. E. Wilson, General Motors president, contended no raise was justified.

The UAW-CIO, in serving notice of intention to strike G. M. plants, said it would exempt defense production. The management, with $700,000,000 in defense orders, declared it was impracticable, however, to distinguish between defense and nondefense work. After the Mediation Board stepped in, the UAW-CIO agreed to defer a walkout for a "reasonable" time.

With most soft coal miners back at work or preparing to return under agreements reached earlier this week, the General Motors dispute with the UAW-CIO became the nation's No. 1 labor controversy.

There were many lesser troubles, however, to concern officials charged with ironing out labor difficulties.

One of these was a walkout yesterday by CIO Electrical Workers at the Packard electric division of General Motors, Warren, Ohio. The concern, with nearly 1,800 employees, is a major producer of wire for the aircraft industry. A union spokesman said the dismissal of 156 workers was regarded as a "lockout." The management said a shortage of materials caused the dismissals.

A strike of CIO utility employees in five eastern Ohio counties was threatened at midnight tonight in an effort to win 20 cents an hour wage increases and other concessions from the Ohio Power Company.

The Midland Steel Products Company, Cleveland, manufacturer of automobile frames, was idle due to a walkout Wednesday of CIO-UAW employees because, union officials said, of the company's failure to insist that new employees join the union. The company has about 1,400 production employees.

A CIO electrical union began picketing the Monroe Calculating Machine Company's plant at Orange, N. J., which employs 700. The union asked a union shop and 10 cents an hour wage increases.

About 500 employees of the General American Transportation Company's plant at Masury, Ohio, walked out in a strike called by the CIO Steel Workers' Organizing Committee. Union officials said the principal complaint was that a wage increase of 10 cents an hour, granted Wednesday, was not made retroactive to April 1.

At Birmingham, Ala., representatives of Alabama coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) negotiated for over two hours in an unsuccessful attempt to reach a contract for the state's 21,000 idle miners.

At Washington, Leon Henderson, price administrator, revoked the order of April 2 fixing a ceiling on bituminous coal prices because the mines are now open after a month-long stoppage of production.

Henderson's price schedules was issued originally, he said, to prevent excessive prices due to the mining stoppage.

FIRE AT BAXLEY. BAXLEY, Ga., May 1.—Fire yesterday destroyed the seven-room residence on Pine street occupied by Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Herndon, who lost all of their furniture. Cause of the fire is unknown. The estimated loss is $2,000.

Vinson's Bill Wins Approval Of Committee

'Cooling Off' Measure Is Seen as Club Over Labor.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—After receiving a favorable report from the House Rules Committee the bill by Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, providing for a "cooling off" period before strikes can be called in defense industries, will be held as a club over labor which congressional leaders may readily swing if the national strike situation increases in seriousness.

Action of the rules body in giving the Vinson measure a special legislative right-of-way represents the longest step yet taken by congress to prevent defense work stoppages.

Although a score of bills have been introduced on the subject since the new session got under way administration forces have been successful thus far in preventing enactment, feeling that the strike situation could best be handled by the President and the national defense mediation board.

Before the recent soft coal strike was settled, however, there was evidence of a marked change in attitude of many administration leaders, who felt very strongly that something should be done—by law if necessary—to prevent strikes in national defense industries.

The Rules Committee reflected this sentiment somewhat when it voted to give the Georgia congressman's strike bill a special parliamentary dispensation. Under the rule granted, the bill will lie on the speaker's table ready to be called up for consideration any time.

The final vote on the legislation may depend on defense strike developments. Had the soft coal strike not been settled as early as it was chances are that the bill would have been rushed to a vote within a week, since it threatened the whole defense program through curtailment of the output of iron and steel, vitally needed in major defense lines of effort.

The important bearing of strikes on the national defense program was pointed out in a speech at Philadelphia yesterday by Walter Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who said that in the first three months of the present year strikes resulted in the loss of 1,577,816 man days of production—enough, he declared, to equip 1,402,460 American soldiers with the latest Garand rifles, or to provide more than 5,000,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

America, the N. A. M. official said, will become the "unsurpassed arsenal of the world" by the end of 1942 if labor disturbances do not upset the steady progress of the huge defense program.

While administration leaders for the most part have sought to avoid the necessity of congressional legislation on strikes, observers have been quick to point out that Representative Vinson long has regarded one of President Roosevelt's staunchest supporters in the house. Consequently, it is argued that he would not have pressed the bill to its present stage without some tacit understanding with the White House.

Scientist Asks Mustard Gas Bath for Nazis

Iowan Suggests Plan To Halt Blitzkrieg of Civilians.

DENVER, May 1.—(P)—An Iowa scientist declared today that a bath of mustard gas released over Germany would bring "the blitzkrieg of explosives aimed at civilian populations to a speedy end."

Dr. O. R. Sweeney, head of the Iowa State College chemical engineering department, was asked in an interview why Germany had not resorted to poison gas in the recent war.

"Don't imagine that it is because of any agreements entered into with other governments," Sweeney replied. "The reason is that Germany lacks the products—grains and the like—from which it is manufactured."

"We have here in the United States vast quantities of surplus rains on which chemistry works to produce the elements for the production of mustard gas—alcohol, ethylene, sulphur, chlorine and salt."

"Put this mustard gas to work and the blitzkrieg of explosives aimed at civilian populations will come to a speedy end."

The police station was locked up tighter than Dick's hat band. Maybe there was a cop of so on patrol. Some citizens suspected their beat carried them 15 miles north to Lake Kemp, where everybody gathered to keep fit for national defense, and to give the fish fits.

Seymour has been observing the opening of game fishing season in Texas like this for many years, but it's the first time national defense was blamed. The official words of their mayor or ringing in their ears, everybody was on the job in boat or slough by daylight, "notwithstanding dictatorialships, wars and worldwide selfishness and greed."

Mayor C. M. Randal had advised strongly that "too-long continued and consistent concentration is sure to prove detrimental to the mental and physical health of the nation."

Planes Will Be Made By Spanish Corporation

MADRID, Spain, May 1.—(P)—The Spanish government announced today the creation of a corporation to manufacture bombing and military transport planes. With a capitalization of 30,000,000 pesetas ($2,700,000), it will be the largest manufacturing enterprise of its kind on the Iberian peninsula.

The official bulletin published the decree, signed April 18 by Generalissimo Francisco Franco, creating the corporation. It will draw on private companies in Spain for technicians, workers and materials.

Foreigners may share in financing the corporation, but foreign capital may not be represented on the board of directors.

U. S. Chamber Gives Defense 'Right of Way'

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(P)—The United States Chamber of Commerce pledged "the right of way" for defense production today, but disagreed sharply with administration officials on the best way to pay the bill and maintain stable economic conditions during the emergency.

The business organization's policies were stated in resolutions adopted at the closing of its four-day convention. These included a pronouncement on "employment relations" which proposed that all member chambers of commerce and "forward-looking and patriotic labor and industrial leaders" immediately seek to work out a moratorium on disputes in defense industries.

As if to underscore this program for labor peace, the board of directors subsequently elected to the presidency of the chamber Albert W. Hawkes, of Kearny, N. J., advocate of a "reasonable" attitude on the part of both management and employees. Hawkes succeeded James S. Kemper, of Chicago.

Resolutions adopted brought out three major differences in chamber and governmental policy:

1. Whereas, administration officials have declared that normal business activities must give way before the exigencies of defense production, the chamber, while advocating the "right of way" for defense, spoke of "super-imposing the program of defense production on our normal conditions."

2. Against Treasury proposals for heading off inflation by reducing consumer purchasing power through taxation, the chamber proposed that inflation be prevented by "increased production (of nondefense goods) to keep pace with consumer demands."

3. Against the administration plan to raise $3,500,000,000 in new taxes to help meet defense costs, the chamber proposed that non-defense expenditures of the government be slashed $2,000,000,000.

If Run-down—try this I.Q. check on yourself

- How much iron in the body?
A. About 3 or 4 grams—or about the amount of iron in a small nail.
- Sources of iron for the body?
A. Beef juice, parsley, fresh lima beans, canned apple butter, bran, beef liver, molasses, egg-yolk, etc.
- How many red-blood-cells has a (a) man—(b) woman—(c) child?
A. Man about 5 millions to cubic millimeter. Woman about 4½ millions to cubic millimeter. Child about 4½ millions to cubic millimeter.
- Healthy average of hemoglobin in the red-blood-cells? A. Man—100%. Woman—90%. Child—82%.
- How does a lowered blood count affect our health? A. Reduces energy, weakens the body, lowers resistance to disease.
- Do our diets supply enough iron?
A. Many times they do not. We then have nutritional deficiencies. This deficiency will not strike people dead. It will reduce the level of vitality, lower the living, thinking, working and enjoying capacities of a people.
- Is iron a MUST element for the body? A. Yes.
- How much intake iron should a body have a day? A. Adults—15 milligrams. Children over 6 years—10 to 15 milligrams. Expectant or nursing mothers—about 20 milligrams.
- How can I tell if I need more iron? A. Paleness is often an indication, so is loss of appetite, loss of weight, lack of energy.
- Is appetite also a factor to my health and how does it work?
A. Food keeps the body in constant repair as well as furnishing body heat and energy. Appetite and stomach digestion go hand in hand. To make use of the food eaten it must be digested and to be digested, the appetite must function in a happy pleasing manner.
- What is a good way to improve appetite and blood strength?
A. Bear in mind iron absorption is dependent to a great extent upon its form and solubility in the acids of the stomach. S.S.S. is designed to attain this end.
- S.S.S. is ideal for those wishing to build back strength and energy. Nature intended... it improves appetite... revives lagging stomach digestion... gives you the iron in a form which may be absorbed. If you tire easily, lack a keen appetite, look pale and worn-out, have lost weight... a frequent sign that your stomach digestion is poor and your blood is weak due to lack of iron... then do try correcting these conditions—in the simple easy way—by starting a course of S.S.S. Tonic. S.S.S. Tonic may be just what you need, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection. A trial will convince you. Begin a course of S.S.S. Tonic treatment at once and note how quickly your strength will come back. S.S.S. is time-tested... scientists have proved it, too. At all drug stores in two convenient sizes. Ask for the big 20-oz. bottle... at a saving. Remember, S.S.S. Tonic helps to "make you feel like yourself again."

Jones, Jay Promoted as Committee Overrides Hornsby.

Overriding three nominations made by Chief M. A. Hornsby, the police committee last night promoted Lieutenant E. W. Ginn to the captaincy made vacant by the death of Captain Jack Malcom and named Acting Lieutenant I. P. Jones to Ginn's lieutenantcy.

Chief Hornsby nominated Lieutenant M. E. Petty for Malcom's post, a suggestion which was unanimously rejected, and nominated H. T. Jenkins as first choice and Detective E. I. Hildebrand as second choice for the lieutenantcy.

He made no recommendations on the acting lieutenantcy, for which position the committee chose former Patrolman W. L. Jay.

Ginn, Jones and Jay were assigned to the morning watch.

The police committee also ruled that the Stanford Dance Hall, on North avenue near Spring street, should be given 30 days in which to find a new location unless its license expires within that time.

Children Race Dignitaries to Buy U. S. Bonds

Truant, 15, Spurs Drive for Funds To Aid Defense.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Children raced dignitaries to post offices and banks to pour money into the Treasury's defense savings campaign, which opened today.

No official figures of the first day's sales was available, but in New York city alone, more than $1,000,000 worth of stamps and bonds were sold in the day's initial rush.

Governors, mayors and other prominent persons had been lined up throughout the nation to inaugurate the sales.

But in Omaha, Neb., for instance, 15-year-old Betty Kurgan played hooky and got to the window first to buy the initial stamp. The superintendent of schools later praised her act and promised to give her protection against the truant officer.

President Roosevelt bought the first bonds and stamps in the nation's capital last night, but this morning 75-year-old John W. Hunefeld, a house painter, added the second Washington bond purchase to his laurels. For years, Hunefeld has been first in line at the White House for the sale of all kinds of functions, including New Year's receptions at the White House which are no longer held.

A large Newark, N. J., bank reported selling $100,000 of the new bonds in an hour. At Buffalo, N. Y., a bond was promised to the winner of the first home run for the Buffalo baseball club.

Parents whose sons are in the armed forces showed special interest in the campaign to raise funds for defense. At Pampa, Texas, the first bonds were purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blankenburg, who have four sons in the Army and Navy and a fifth son who is waiting until he is old enough to join voluntarily as his brothers did.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, did a thorough job on making the first bond purchases. He took one each of the $25, $50, $100, $500, and $1,000 units.

Bass Class Queen Is Nita Johnston

Nita Johnston, queen of the B-3-L eighth grade low class at Bass Junior High school, was absent when a Constitution photographer went to the school to make pictures of the class superlatives.

At the time the photographer was informed that Dorothy Forrester was queen and the picture cut lines said that she was. Later it was learned that some error was made at the school and that Nita Johnston is the real queen.

Dexter School Head Accepts Sylvania Post

DUBLIN, Ga., May 1.—Superintendent Howard S. Peek, of the Dexter High school, has been elected head of the Sylvania city school system for the next year, and has accepted, it was learned here.

Peek, a native of Jackson, came to the Dexter school last year from Chester, where he was head of the high school there. He has taught 15 years.

The Sylvania system employs a total of 31 teachers, and its high school has been a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for 15 years.

Officer Urges Weeding Out of Incompetents

Says Leaders Will Be Reassigned for Efficiency's Sake.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 1.—(AP)—Stressing the "urgent" need for weeding out incompetent Army leaders, Lieutenant General Ben Lear, second Army commander, said today reassignments or reclassifications will be made "in all appropriate cases."

General Lear's statement was in a letter to all units in his command throughout 16 states in the Midwest and Southeast.

The letter called attention to Army regulation 605-230, which states in part: "Reassignment or reclassification of officers is necessary when it is found that there has been a change in efficiency or an error in assignment of the individual."

"The spirit as well as the letter of this regulation will be carried out by all concerned with its execution," General Lear said.

"Great care must be exercised to prevent injustice," he pointed out, "but the necessity for expeditious action in weeding out incompetent leaders, whenever and wherever these are found, is equally as urgent as the speedy accomplishment of the program of rearmament."

The 128th Will Try Democracy And Select Officers From Ranks

An experiment in military democracy, believed to be the first of its kind in a modern army, was disclosed here last night as Major George G. Finch announced that 29 officers of the 128th Observation Squadron will be picked from the ranks of enlisted men.

Men best qualified for the commissions will be given them, he said, in addressing a meeting of the squadron personnel which reclassified in federal recognition as a unit of the National Guard.

To be elevated from the ranks will be 16 pilots, 12 observers and one non-rated officer. Other officers of the squadron, "Atlanta's Own," are the commander, Major Finch, and the medical officer, Dr. John T. Rambo.

Major Elmer J. Rogers, of the regular Army, who has been attached to the 128th as flight instructor, served as inspector. He declared that the squadron "is destined perhaps to be Georgia's finest contribution to national defense. People will speak of this unit with pride of ownership."

The impressive recognition ceremonies included talks by Adjutant General Sion B. Hawkins and Colonel T. W. Hastey, corps air officer.

Colonel Hastey declared the squadron "will probably have an interesting time," and said the men were "lucky to have such a go-getter for a commanding officer."

The men were permitted to set the day and time for drills by majority vote. Drills will be held weekly on Monday from 6 to 6:30 until 7:30 o'clock.

Induction into federal service and a year of training at Camp Forrest, in Tennessee, will come "in a few months, as soon as the federal government has completed the task of providing uniforms and other equipment," Major Rogers said.

Air Mailed in 1938, Letter Reaches Rome

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
ROME, Ga., May 1.—An air-mail letter which left Cordoba, Argentina, in June, 1938, on a plane which crashed in Chile a few days later, arrived at the correct address near here two weeks ago, it was revealed today.

The letter was made by S. M. Wynn to his sister, Mrs. Jones Montgomery, Rome, Route 3, and postal markings on the letter show that it was sent via the plane "Panagra," which crashed in the swamps of Chile, killing the pilot.

The letter was mailed a second time at the post office at Santiago, Chile.

Atlanta Territory Donates $9,317 of Total, Jenkins Reports.

A total of $14,917 has been raised in cash for the Greek War Relief Fund through efforts of theaters in the Atlanta and Charlotte exhibition territories, it was announced yesterday by William K. Jenkins, general chairman of the exhibitors' drive.

Of the total, $9,317 was raised in the Atlanta territory, which includes Georgia, Florida, and parts of Alabama and Tennessee.

The largest sum raised in any one house in the two territories was $1,082 at the Miller theater in Augusta, a Lucas & Jenkins operation. The house is run by Frank J. Miller, a partner in the Augusta operations, who served as exhibitor co-chairman for the Atlanta territory.

Roy M. Avery, branch manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, was distributor co-chairman. Charlotte territory was handled by H. F. Kinney, exhibitor co-chairman, and R. J. Ingram, distributor co-chairman, which to date has raised $5,599.

The entire effort in both territories was under direction of Jenkins, who stated, in announcing results of the drive:

"It is a matter of tremendous pride to me that the theaters have done such a magnificent job in raising funds for Greek War Relief. The Greeks, by their valor and great fighting qualities against tremendous odds, have won the admiration of the world."

While the drive was not an activity of the Variety Club, organization of men in the entertainment field, Jenkins pointed out that all committee chairmen were members of the club.

That Hamilton Woman Finally Tracked Down

Miss Katherine Allison Gets $50 for Shrewd Detecting.

That Hamilton Woman—with thousands of men and women on her trail—got caught yesterday. For 50 minutes of her allotted hour she had strolled through the downtown streets undetected, then with only 10 minutes to go, she was accosted at Walton and Peachtree streets by Miss Katherine Allison, of 390 Hopkins street, S. W.

Miss Allison was so excited she could scarcely talk. She kept tapping That Hamilton Woman on the shoulder with her copy of The Atlanta Constitution until she managed to stutter—"You are That Hamilton Woman."

That Hamilton Woman submitted gracefully. And Miss Allison will be rewarded by The Constitution with $50 for capturing the Atlanta counterpart of the woman who changed the fate of the British empire when she fell in love with its greatest naval hero, Lord Nelson.

The lovely vixen will be on the streets of downtown Atlanta again today between the hours of 12 o'clock noon and 1 o'clock. To the person first identifying her and tapping her on the shoulder with a copy of this morning's Constitution and announcing, "You are That Hamilton Woman," The Constitution will pay $25.

Yesterday That Hamilton Woman began her stroll through Atlanta at the Terminal station, walked over to the Capitol building, came back by the Hurt building and was finally caught on Peachtree street.

The film, "That Hamilton Woman," starring Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, begins at Loew's Grand today.

Germans Flood Troops Toward Russian Border

'Incessant Streams' Declared Moving Through the Balkans.

NEW YORK, May 1.—(UP)—Private advices to the United Press from the Balkans late tonight reported "incessant streams" of German troops and trucks moving through the Balkans, some of them to the northwestward. Although strong units appeared to be moving in the direction of the Russian frontiers, competent quarters were quoted as saying that neither Germany nor Russia would precipitate a clash and that no undue strain in German-Russian relations had been noted. For the past week the German forces have been moving northward, almost at the same tempo that they poured southward just before the start of the Balkan blitzkrieg and the invasions of Yugoslavia and Greece on April 6, these advices said. Many of the German troops appear to be returning to the bases of Adolf Hitler's Austrian "troop pool," but others are being diverted to Slovakia simultaneous with the suspension there of public railroad traffic.

Elite Nazi Troops. An estimate of the size of the German troop movements, beyond the statement that they are cast, could not be obtained but among the German forces were believed to be elite Nazi troops returning to Austria for a week or more of rest and overhauling before being "reassigned." Surplus German troops who have been in Vienna throughout the Balkan blitzkrieg were said in the Balkan reports to be "moving elsewhere" and were believed to include some Slovakian units. The German troop movements were said to have aroused intense speculation as to the state of German-Russian relations and some quarters in the Balkans saw an approaching or threatened crisis. Most observers there were said to believe, however, that Russia and Germany are both trying their utmost to avoid any provocation for a clash for which neither is ready. Germany, it was said, may be trying to "awe" the Soviets and at the same time prevent the idle EMPLOYER-EMPLOYEE BREAK BREAD.—Employer D. A. Ratliff, of the Fulton County Vocational Teachers, breaks bread with his employe, Miss Louise Bradford, last night at a dinner given in Davison's tearoom. Miss Peggy Freas, another county employe, looks on.

German forces from suffering dry rot and inactivity in barracks.

Fuel Plentiful. These German forces, the United Press' private advices said, are well supplied with fuel and "it is no exaggeration to say they're swimming in it."

"You can't get the odor of gasoline out of your nostrils hereabouts," the dispatch said. Competent quarters said that Germany, by moving the large forces up to the Russian frontiers, may intend to warn Russia without actually inviting a clash with the Soviets.

The Germans, these sources pointed out, are not yet prepared to fight on the eastern front and feel that they have plenty of time to make preparations there because of the Russians' own lack of preparations.

There are German units still moving southward as well, but these are mostly administration, police and technical units moving into the newly occupied territories.

Wife Charged With 'Loaning' Mate to Woman

Husband Seeks Half of $10,000 as His Share in Deal.

LOS ANGELES, May 1.—(AP)—The story of how a woman allegedly loaned her husband to another woman for $10,000 and promised him half came to light today as he asked for his share in a suit for divorce.

Samuel Brummel, insurance salesman, sued Mrs. Lillian Brummel on grounds of desertion. She has filed a cross-complaint alleging cruelty and desertion on his part.

Identified in the divorce case as the woman who assertedly paid $10,000 for the loan of Brummel was Mrs. Norma Brummel, who married him in 1938 after Mrs. Lillian Brummel obtained a Mexican divorce. Last year, however, Mrs. Norma Brummel obtained an annulment on the ground the first Mrs. Brummel's divorce was not legal and that he had been married all along to his first wife.

Brummel asks $5,000 from his first wife as his part of the community property. Brummel detailed how his wife promised to give him half the money after he divorced the second Mrs. Brummel, and continued: "My wife told me at least 100 times that I was only loaned to her for a year. She would say: 'Remember, I expect you back after one year. I am just loaning you out.'"

Brummel said he married Mrs. Norma Brummel a month after the divorce, but that he lived "under Norma's roof only four weeks."

Asked if he continued to see his first wife while he was married to the second, Brummel said: "Oh, yes, we saw each other right along."

High Schools To Send Boys To Legion Camp

Georgia 'State' for Youth To Open June 29 at Chapman Springs.

Every boys' high school in Georgia has been invited to send one or more students to the Georgia Boys' State to be conducted by the American Legion from June 29 through July 6 at the Fulton County 4-H Club camp near College Park.

The invitation went out yesterday to boys' high principals from Robert B. Giles, Atlanta attorney and director of the Georgia Boys' State. Boys' high schools co-operated enthusiastically in the recent state-wide oratorical contests for boys conducted by the Legion, and Director Giles in his letter to boys' high principals expressed the hope that they would do likewise in the Georgia Boys' State, which is the next Americanism activity on the Legion program.

The Boys' State is to be a week's intensive training for boys in the rights, duties and responsibilities of citizenship. The College Park camp has a capacity for 200 and is certain to be filled, Director Giles said. In addition to the boys' high schools, all Legion posts in Georgia are invited to sponsor one or more boys. The cost of the training course is $12.50, which covers everything except transportation. Boys' States conducted by the Legion in more than 30 other states have been a remarkable success. This will be the first in Georgia.

Hit-Run Victim Is Mrs. Powell

Mrs. Emma Powell, 54, of 218 Crumley street, has been identified as the woman who was killed Wednesday night when struck by an automobile at Central avenue and Crumley street. Police are investigating clues as to the identity of the hit-and-run driver of the car. She is survived by her husband, J. N. Powell, and one son, Barney Goodwin. Funeral services will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

Sylvan Meyer, 19, Is Student Editor

Sylvan Meyer, 19, of Atlanta, has been appointed managing editor of the Daily Tarheel, student newspaper at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. A junior in the school of journalism, he is the first third-year man to be accorded the honor in 12 years. Usually a senior holds the post. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David N. Meyer, of 1723 Johnson road. Mr. Meyer is manager of the State Distributing Company.

Building Permits in City, County Show Increase

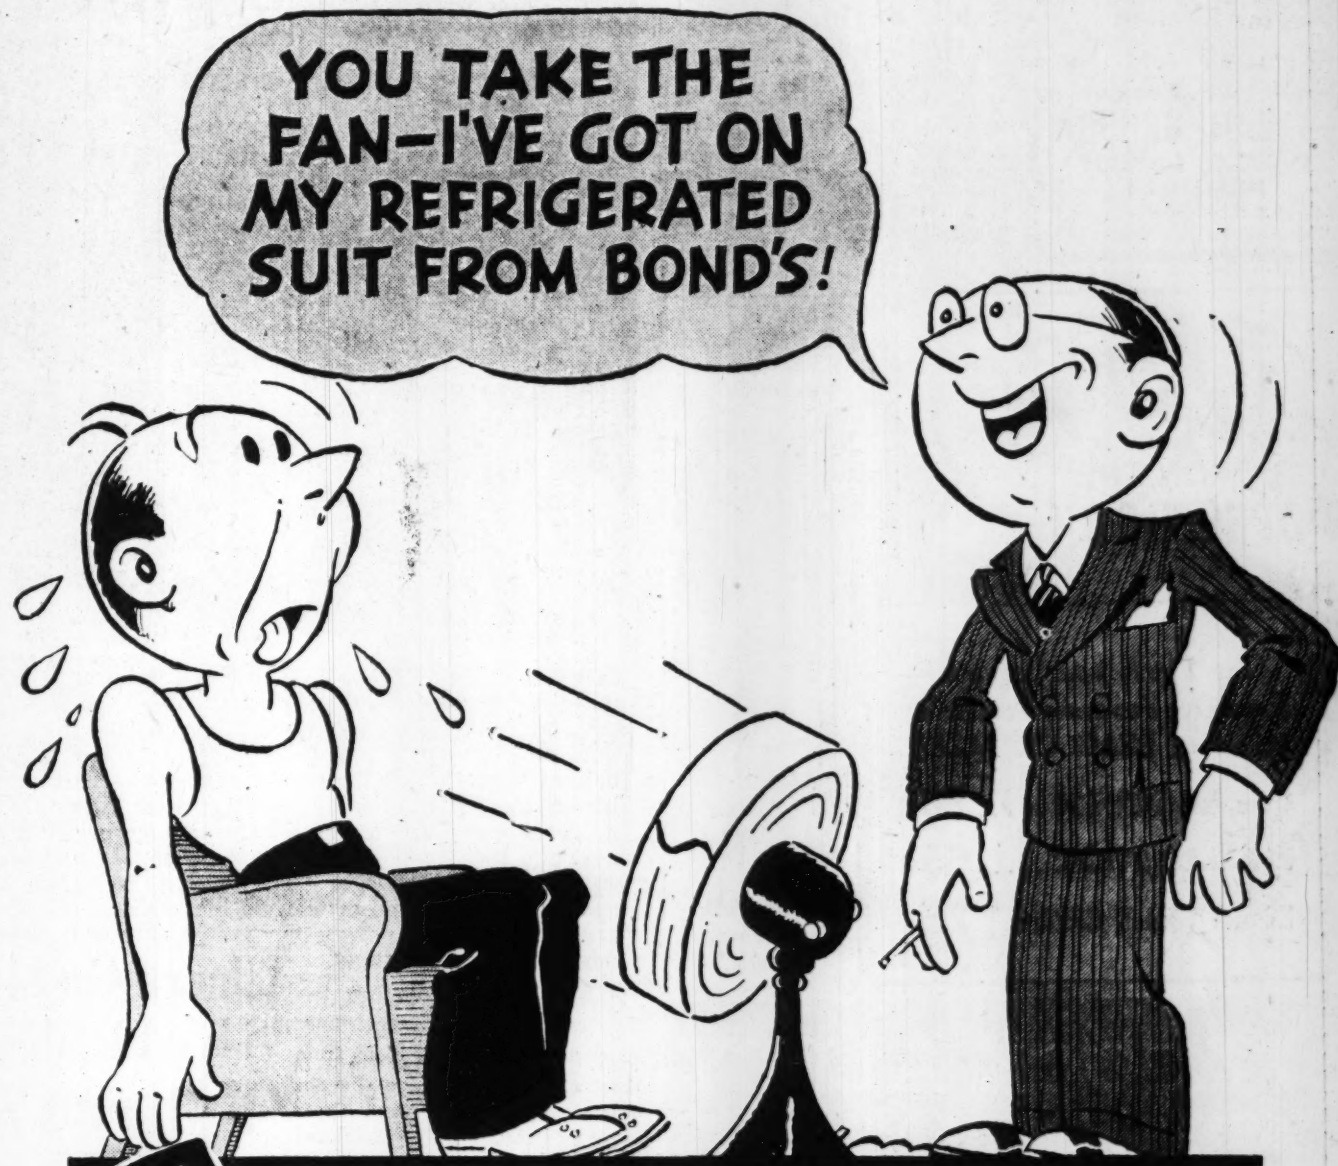

Construction permits granted during April in Atlanta and Fulton county increased $347,002 over the same month last year, city officials reported yesterday. The city issued 276 permits last month for buildings valued at $575,613. The county issued 155 permits for buildings valued at $564,609.

ROW SETTLED. ELBERTON, Ga., May 1.—(AP)—Mayor Ben I. Sutton pondered the case of two residents of "Sweet Heaven," Negro settlement, haled before him on assorted charges of fighting and disturbing the neighborhood. Finally he hit upon the solution, based on the fact the couple admitted they had been "keeping company." It will be "a life sentence," his honor decided, and ordered them to get married and get married promptly. The couple agreed.

"Herd up" that used stove, heater, fur coat, radio, gun, etc., and "corral" cash by advertising them in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Ulcers Called 'Shell Shock' Of Present War

Emotional Stress Seen as Cause of New Disorder.

By THOMAS R. HENRY.
WASHINGTON, May 1.—This war promises to bring an enormous increase in stomach ulcers—the "shell shock" of the present conflict.

This was revealed here today by Dr. Winifred Overholzer, head of the National Research Council's committee on neuropsychiatric problems associated with national defense, on the basis of reports received from Great Britain and Canada.

Approximately 25 per cent of the Canadian officers and enlisted men who have returned from overseas have gastric ulcers, according to a report made to Dr. Overholzer by an agent of the committee who has just returned from Canada. They are the most prevalent causes of disability. During the first World War they ranked tenth.

Due to Emotions.
The increase probably is due entirely to the emotional upsets to which the men are subjected, Dr. Overholzer said. It long has been known that stomach ulcers may be "psychogenic" caused primarily by mental reactions. Persons living in intense excitement are especially subject to them. The increase constitutes the most notable new psychiatric development of the present conflict.

Otherwise, Dr. Overholzer said, on the basis of personal reports just received, the number of outright nervous and mental ailments developing in Great Britain is unbelievably small, considering the stresses to which the population is subjected.

The stomach ulcers, it was stressed, are by no means "imagined." They are diagnosed by physicians on the basis of X-ray and other physical examinations. They are to be treated as any other ulcers; they probably have the same potentialities of becoming malignant.

Stress Blamed.
Almost any suppressed emotion may have the possibility of expressing itself in an organic disorder, and this expression is entirely outside the voluntary control of the individual. The condition greatly improves when the stress is removed.

Part of the British escape from outright nervous and mental diseases, Dr. Overholzer explained, may be owing to the fact that early in the war British medical services held lengthy consultations with Dr. A. Mirat, chief psychiatric officer of the Spanish Loyalist forces in the civil war. On the basis of his advice many breakdowns were expected and many hospitals set up to give such victims immediate treatment. These have gone largely unused.

Among the things Dr. Mirat told the British was that bombing, per se, was not nearly so prolific a producer of nervous disorders as malnutrition. This has been taken into account in reinforced foods provided the population.

Civilians Hard Hit.
It also was stressed in conferences with the Spanish authority that civilians developed mental and nervous diseases more easily than soldiers because they felt themselves in a more helpless position. The very possession of a gun acted on the subconscious of the soldier.

As an antidote for this, according to advice Dr. Overholzer has received from United States Public Health officers in England, a systematic attempt is being made to keep everybody busy at some war activity, even if it is not essential so far as defense is concerned.

The development of the stomach ulcers, it was explained, might be considered as a 1941 version of "shell shock."

Barnesville Rotarians Hear Dr. Frank Jones
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 1.—Dr. Frank Jones, past president and secretary of the Macon Rotary Club, was the speaker Tuesday at the meeting of the Rotary Club, his subject being "Values." "We will win the war," Dr. Jones said, "and it will be won by men who have health, character and friends, and not by disciples of despair." Dr. Jones listed man's assets as health, character and friends. "They are the things that are above price, the things that money cannot buy, yet can be had by all," he declared. The speaker was introduced by Major George B. Connell, vice president of Gordon College. Joe H. Smith, president, was in charge of the meeting.

CONTRACT APPROVED.
WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Approval of a $897,900 contract for construction of a 374-unit housing project at Wilmington, N. C., for Army enlisted personnel at Camp Davis, was announced today by the United States Housing Authority.

RICH'S

Selection of Colleges Fills Thoughts of June Graduates

By SALLY FORTH.

... "COME SEPTEMBER," a group of Atlanta belles who will be graduated in June from Washington Seminary, North Fulton High and North Avenue Presbyterian, will don their "thinking caps" preparatory to entering institutions of higher learning, here and elsewhere. Some of the ambitious belles prefer to attend the schools and colleges near home, while others prefer distant climes for the completion of their education.

The youthful Atlantans who will be "near, but yet so far," are those who plan to attend the University of Georgia in Athens. This group will include Marion Weltner, Ruth Lyons, Nelle Doyal, Lois Kaubach, Carol Knight and Gloria Gormley. Marion and Gloria, you know, will follow in the footsteps of their sisters, Caliste Gormley.

Among the many Virginia colleges which attract Atlantans, are Randolph-Macon, Sweet Briar and Sullins. The 1941 graduates who have selected Sweet Briar are Anne Egan and Mia Hecht, while Randolph-Macon is the choice of Helen Milburn and Betty Gargies. Anise Chason and Joanne Borman are considering Sullins.

Because of the many Atlanta students who have attended Bradford Junior College in Massachusetts, Ann Ramspeck seems to favor that popular school. Another school favored by local sub-debs is Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., which is the present selection of Betty Williams, Elizabeth George, Stella Ruth Hillard, Virginia Nelson, Tina Will and Edwina Macon.

Betty Regenstein, Carolyn Howell, Dorothy Lowe and Frances Blythe may attend Sophie Newcomb in New Orleans, though Carolyn is also considering Georgia University, and Frances talks about Duke and National Park Seminary.

Sarah Cates has a weakness for Ogontz, in Pennsylvania, while Isabelle Woolford will enter the junior college division of Mount Vernon Seminary in Washington. Dottie Groome has her heart set on Duke, and Bessie Astin will probably study at Wesleyan College in Macon.

Patty Evans is wavering between Wellesley College in Massachusetts and Denison University in Ohio. Margaret, Patty's older sister, attends the latter institution, and Patty's decision may hinge on this fact.

Mrs. R. B. Harlan, of Cincinnati, Ohio, left, is visiting Miss Charlotte Galbraith, right, and is forming the inspiration for a round of informal social affairs. Mrs. Harlan was guest of honor last evening at the party given by her hostess at her home on Piedmont avenue, with Miss Louise Sims, a popular bride-elect, sharing honors. Mrs. C. A. Galbraith, mother of the hostess, assisted in entertaining.

Miss Ann Clay, James Kenan Wed at Runnymede May 24

PARIS, Ky., May 1.—Of important social interest here and in Georgia is the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Ann Clay, of this city, and James Kenan, of Atlanta, whose engagement was recently revealed. Miss Clay returns today from Atlanta, where she visited Mrs. Hughes Spalding at her home on Peachtree road.

The ceremony will be a beautiful al fresco event taking place on Saturday, May 24, at Runnymede, the country estate of the bride-elect's parents, Senator and Mrs. Johnson N. Camden, of this city. The Rev. Father Joseph Whalen, pastor of the Church of the Annunciation of this city, will officiate at 5 o'clock in the presence of a representative gathering of relatives and friends and many out-of-town guests.

Miss Clay will be given in marriage by her father, Senator Camden, and her maid of honor will be her sister, Miss Agnes Clay. Another sister, Miss Amelia Field Clay, and a cousin, Miss Mary Elizabeth Clay, both of this city, will be the bridesmaids.

Frank Hawkins Kenan, of Durham, N. C., will be best man for his brother and the ushers will be Brutus Clay Jr. and James Clay, of this city; Philip Alston Jr., J. L. Riley, E. D. Smith Jr. and Jack Spalding, all of Atlanta; Lenoir Wright, of Charlotte, N. C., and Harry Blackston, of New York.

After the ceremony, Senator and Mrs. Clay will entertain at an al fresco reception for their daughter and Mr. Kenan.

from the opera "Semiramide," by Rossini, as Winifred is partial to Italian operas. Translated into English, the title means "At Last Hope is Dawning," and the song is admirably suited to her vocal range.

Blond and slender Winifred is an Atlanta-born artist, the talented daughter of Mrs. Albert B. Niall, and quite recently she concluded a 14-week engagement on the WAGA program. Winifred has memorized several French and Italian operas and likes the music from those operas because she thinks the languages do much for her voice.

She inherits her love for music from her gifted mother, who composed the music to the patriotic poem written by Mrs. May Walter Cox. The song is entitled "American Soldier Boy," and the words and music are being copyrighted at the moment.

Another Georgia girl, young and pretty Claire Davis, of Moultrie, sang for Frank St. Leger, who encouraged Claire to study and train her voice. She is far too young to know how far she can go in the musical world, but Claire possesses a soprano voice of wild and cultivated azaleas. To point out to the visitors the most beautiful spots in the property, will be men to direct to the azalea trails, where thousands of blooms lend enchantment to the winding walks. "The Shack," as the house itself is called, is familiar to many as a gathering place for parties.

At the Clay home, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hopkins one will be impressed with what can be done in four years' time. The motif of the planting is in keeping with the great natural beauty of the property and contains two lakes, for swimming and fishing.

In town visitors will be charmed with the beauty and dignity of the Lon Grove home on Habersham road. This garden follows closely the English pot-garden type, with potted plants used interchangeably to provide continuous bloom. Boxwood and other country places listed. Information will also be given at the garden tour booth at the Biltmore hotel. Both of these places will be operated Saturday and Sunday and red arrows marked "Garden" will be placed strategically along the routes to each place.

of exquisite tone and quality. She receives her diploma in June from Shorter College in Rome, where she has been cultivating her voice for four years. She sang the aria from Verdi's "La Traviata" when she had her audition, and Mr. St. Leger also heard her sing another song in English. She, too, prefers Italian operas and thinks that language and music have the most pleasing effect upon her voice.

Claire is petite and charming, and is a great favorite with Moultrie citizens. She gave a concert not very long ago in Moultrie, and admirers from many towns around her home city flocked to hear her program, which pleased everyone. She returned to Shorter College immediately after the audition with the determination to give more time to her music and to grow a little older before launching her career. After her graduation, Claire will study under some noted teacher in New York City.

... SALLY LEARNED with interest the news that Jane Noland has recently been appointed news editor of "Stephens Life," the Stephens College weekly paper. Jane is busy these days making plans for this year's final edition, which she will help edit preparatory to assuming her position for 1941-42.

Jane, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Noland, is a member of the junior class at the Missouri college and is a popular member of the student body. She is a pledge to the Kappa Alpha Phi social sorority, had the role of "Beauty" in the play "Everyman," and just recently returned from the 5,000-mile Stephens College spring trip to the west coast and Canada.

Jane's literary ability has been recognized at the school for she was recently pledged to the Stephens College chapter of Chi Delta Phi, national honorary creative writing sorority. Another Georgia girl, Olive Price Charters, of Gainesville, has also been named a member of the Chi Delta Phi. The daughter of Mrs. Olive C. Butler, of Gainesville, Olive is a member of the Beta Sigma Beta social sorority and is a popular figure on the Stephens campus.

Tours of Beautiful Gardens Scheduled for This Weekend

This weekend the concluding features of the tenth annual local garden tour, sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary for Eggleston Children's hospital, will be held. The two-day schedule Saturday and Sunday lists outstanding homes and gardens to bring to a climax the state-wide pilgrimage of the Garden Club of Georgia.

To be shown Saturday from 11 to 3:30 o'clock will be the house and garden of Dr. and Mrs. Lon Grove, on Habersham road; the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hopkins, Conway road; the house and garden of Mr. and Mrs. William Wardlaw Sr., Dunwoody, and "Lazy River Inn" for the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Ryburn Clay on Spalding drive.

For the convenience of those making these tours an information booth will be placed at the intersection at Sandy Springs, approximately 11 miles out the Roswell road, to direct visitors to the country places listed. Information will also be given at the garden tour booth at the Biltmore hotel. Both of these places will be operated Saturday and Sunday and red arrows marked "Garden" will be placed strategically along the routes to each place.

MRS. LOUIS S. SOHN JR.

Miss Hazel Ward Marries Louis Sohn Jr. in Marietta

MARIETTA, Ga., May 1.—Miss Hazel Ward, lovely titian-haired daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Clement Ward, of Marietta, became the bride of Lieutenant Louis Seymour Sohn Jr., of Baltimore, Md., and Fort Jackson, S. C., at a ceremony performed today by Judge J. Harold Hawkins at the home of the bride's parents on the Canton road.

The marriage vows were spoken before an improvised altar of satin, festooned with asparagus fern and beautified with candelabras of cathedral tapers and baskets of white gladioli. The double ring ceremony was used and only the immediate families were present.

The bride was gowned in a powder blue afternoon dress worn with a pink Howard Hodge hat with camellia trim and an elbow length veil. She wore a shoulder spray of camellias and her accessories were black.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ward entertained at a reception. Mrs. Ward was becomingly gowned in slate blue crepe worn with a shoulder spray of gardenias.

The bride is the only daughter of her parents. Her brothers are Judson Clement Ward, and the late William Anderson Ward. She graduated from Marietta High school and from the University of Georgia, where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority and a past president. She was a member of the Mortar Board and president of the sophomore class, and since graduation has been a popular member of the social set in Marietta. She was president of the Cotillion Club here.

Mr. Sohn is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Seymour Sohn, of Baltimore. He attended Boys' High in Atlanta and graduated from the University of Georgia. He was president of Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity, member of Scabbard and Blade, Black Friars and was assistant director of University theater. He also attended Columbia University Law School.

The groom and his bride left immediately after the ceremony, the latter traveling in a tailored suit of aqua with a matching straw hat and alligator accessories. Her flowers were gardenias. The young couple will reside at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Miss Nina Krupp Marries Mr. Barnes in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 1.—At a home ceremony solemnized Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, Miss Nina Elizabeth Krupp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith Frederick Krupp, of Columbus, formerly of Atlanta, became the bride of Leonard Breckenridge Barnes Jr., of Benton, Ky., formerly of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

The ceremony was performed at the Krupp home on Seventeenth avenue, with the Rev. Dr. Frederick S. Porter, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating in the presence of the members of the two families and a few close friends.

Arrangements of white garden flowers and a candelabra holding lighted candles decorated the home. Tall white wrought iron urns, entwined with smilax and holding white gladioli, formed the background for the improvised altar. A musical program was presented by Mrs. Arthur Springer Sr.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. She had as her maid of honor, her sister, Miss Karen Krupp, of Atlanta, who wore navy blue and carried a bouquet of white garden flowers. Mr. Barnes had as his best man, Smith Frederick Krupp Jr., the bride's brother.

The bride was lovely in her wedding dress of French blue crepe fashioned along princess lines and worn with a matching full-length fitted coat. A French blue hat trimmed with a veil and accessories of navy and white completed her ensemble.

The bride's mother wore navy crepe accented by pink lingerie collar and cuffs and a shoulder spray of pink roses. The groom's mother wore navy and white crepe with accessories of white and a shoulder cluster of pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth, and held a silver candelabra holding white tapers, and was centered with a reflector surrounded with roses, on which the bride's cake was placed. Miss Mary Emma Krupp and Mrs. F. E. Holmes assisted in entertaining.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard B. Barnes, parents of the groom; Mrs. J. R. Lowery, grandmother of the groom; and Mrs. F. H. Austin and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Alston, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Hepner, E. Holmes, Misses Irene Looney, Mary and Clyde Water, Vera Shirley, Wenonah Kinard and Claude Callaway, all of Atlanta, and Mrs. Jo Adams, of Birmingham, Ala.

You Must Play Bridge!

By KATHRYN BARNWELL DUDLEY

With the somewhat hesitant approach of the summer season comes a noticeable revival of interest in good bridge. Scorching afternoons will find "pretty young things" congregated on colorful porches and bidding everything from negative no-trumps to grand slams.

It seems that bridge is here to stay. And yet, is there one of you who has missed the agony of being paired for a game with your "best beau" when you know bridge is the very worst thing you do?

If you have participated in such a battle of wits, the game probably went something like this: Assembling his hand nonchalantly, your "intended" mentions ever so casually a rule from Culbertson's newest book and you cringe within with the painful conviction that he is a "shark." Shuffling tensely through your hand, you find yourself lamenting the "end of a beautiful friendship" while you search frantically for startling cards with which to impress him.

Still repeating miserably to yourself that you should never have let yourself in for this, you glance up to meet his look of appraisal that penetrates your thin show of intelligence ruthlessly.

Grievous Error. You deplore your confusion. And you realize that you will probably trump his ace before the evening is over. Suddenly you are aware of a din of chatter among the players, and you realize with horror that you have done just that!

Smiling indulgently, he forgives you, while your mind is absorbed with brilliant plays and processes by which to make it up to him. The game goes smoothly for a time, and finally the stiffness goes out of your knees, your smile becomes natural and you begin to think your game is not so bad after all.

Alas, you gloated in a false sense of security, for a moment later you are looking into your beloved's accusing eyes while he demands, "Why didn't you return my lead?"

You try bravado. "Oh, I just thought mine would be more strategic at that particular time," you reply in a desperate effort to give them the impression you know what it's all about. General argument ensues, and finally you are forgiven again, and play is resumed.

You force yourself to be alert. You play recklessly, frantically. And finally, you grow tired of working so hard. Stupid fools, you think, to take a game so seriously.

And so you dream of the petunias growing in the garden, and mother's gardenia bush that will probably bloom in time for you to wear a blossom in your hair at the dance Friday night.

Another Faux Pas.

You are just beginning to have a good time when your opponent fumbles dazedly with the little heap of cards which fell on the last play, and inquires with a maddening show of tact, "You don't have another club?"

You glance at your cards prepared to deny any knowledge of the filthy thing, when suddenly words freeze on your lips as you see the 10 of clubs leering from your hand. You play it without comment, while he who used to be your "one and only" groans and hands over as a forfeit the two tricks needed to win the rubber for the opponents.

You pay your 90 cents loss vowing never to play again, and allow your escort, who is hardly civil at this point, to lead you out of the house. Attempting to console yourself, you decide that bridge is a silly game, and that "he" is silly to take it so seriously. You will give both the game and him up, and be happy again.

Bridge is here to stay, however, and your attempt to ignore its existence does not in the least affect its popularity. But it affects yours tremendously. So finally, you give in and decide to "play ball" and learn it since there seems to be no way out.

The following week-end finds you reclining in the porch hammock memorizing aloud Ely Culbertson's bridge rules. And the gardenias, which bloomed for the dance, and which will never see it now that you're not going, repose resignedly at the neckline of your pink sweater.

THEY'RE AT WAR NEXT DOOR:

Canada's Planned War Economy Restricts Prices, Travel to U. S.

(Appointment of Leon Henderson as federal price administrator, his pegging of steel prices, and the recent barter agreement between President Roosevelt and Canada's Prime Minister Mackenzie King, lend added interest to this, the tenth of the series "They're At War Next Door." Topic of today's installment is: "Canada's Economic Program.")

By GEORGE H. LYON.

If you live in Canada you can't: Obey that impulse and go travelling in the United States for pleasure. You'll be taken off the train at the border.

Buy Florida strawberries or American cigarettes or Chesapeake Bay oysters.

Raise your tenant's rent in a congested war industry area without a court order.

Sell sugar, if you're a grocer, for a price higher than the government has set.

You can't do these things—or a hundred others—because Canada is at war. Canada's planned war economy should be of interest to Americans because sooner or later, with defense bills mounting higher and higher, we may be able to profit from her experience.

As early as the autumn of 1938, the Canadian government realized that in event of war, one of the nation's problems would be the conservation of American dollars. It was realized that the demand for these dollars would be very great and that steps must be taken to make sure that they weren't wasted or didn't flow down the drain without helping the war effort.

Thus plans were drawn up to compel Canadian shippers to the United States to turn in all the dollars they collected to their government. They were, of course, to be paid off in Canadian dollars while the government was to keep the American dollars to spend south of the border for war supplies.

Luxury List.

And to make sure that they were spent only for war supplies, Canada drew up a list of luxury goods which might no longer be imported from the United States. It wanted to spend more than ever before in the United States but it wanted to be sure that the money was used only to win the war.

So Graham Towers, president of the Bank of Canada, now chairman of the Foreign Exchange Control Board, and his colleagues went to work on a conservation plan nearly a year before war was declared. When war came, the plan was ready and they were given five days to put the plan into execution. Everything had to be done with complete secrecy or there would have been wide selling in all markets and a fearful national scandal.

Forms had to be printed secretly and sent across the country in sealed packages. Finally, on September 15, 1939, representatives of the banks were called in, told the whole story and kept huddled in one room until after business hours. The next morning the plan went into operation across the country.

There hadn't been a leak. All over Canada people read in their morning papers that travel across the border had been almost wholly restricted, that there had been a heavy clamping down on imports and that non-residents could no longer sell Canadian securities without the government's permission.

Endless Billions.

Americans, of course, own endless billions of Canadian securities. "We knew early in '39 that it was going to be a tough show," a member of the Exchange Control Commission in Ottawa told me, "and that unless we took steps to stop it there would be a rush to sell Canadian holdings. Nervous people in the States would try to sell out and get their money home and some of our own people would try to convert their Canadian investments into American securities."

"If we had permitted this to happen the bottom would have dropped out of the market and government financing would have become impossible. So our regulations don't permit nonresidents to sell Canadian securities without a permit. You can transfer to another investment of the same type, but it's important to us that John Doe, an American, maintain his financial position in Canada. And don't forget that one of our needs for American dollars comes from our determination to keep on paying interest and dividends to American investors."

Commodity prices in Canada are controlled through two agencies—the controllers in the ministry of munitions and supply, which I will describe in a later article, and the war-time prices and trade board. Both have wide powers, although in some instances their action may require approval of the cabinet.

The controllers, who are virtual czars of their respective industries, regulate prices for power, lumber, steel and the like. The war-time prices board policies the price of necessities such as food, fuel, clothing and rent. The board went into action at the beginning of the war. The story of the control of sugar prices is a fair illustration of its activities.

Hitler was inconsiderate enough to start his war in the midst of the peach-canning season with the result that housewives swarmed into the market early in September and began buying 100-pound sacks of sugar. A panic followed and wholesalers couldn't distribute sugar fast enough. It came in by the carloads but still there wasn't enough.

Refineries Called.

The price board finally called in the refineries, which agreed to increase their distribution 25 per cent with no increase in price. Over 190,000,000 pounds of sugar was distributed in six weeks. An administrator was then appointed to take care of the purchase and allocation of all the raw sugar used in Canada.

Working with the British admiralty to utilize shipping capacity and save tonnage, he buys throughout the world and sells to Canadian refineries at a fixed price. The result: the price of refined sugar advanced less than one cent between the beginning of the war and March 30 of this year, when an additional one cent was added. The sugar story has its parallel in several other commodities, such as wool and butter. The coal administrator keeps his surveys up to date, day by day, and is in position to put in a rationing system overnight if occasion should arise.

I came away from Canada with this definite impression: her war economy is a carefully conceived, long-range plan designed to put every possible dollar to work, to prevent inflation and to block profiteering.

I'm convinced that the plan is working.

John Garfield Is Radio Guest Of Kate Smith

Beloved Star Launches Her Eleventh Year of Broadcasting.

Kate Smith, the First Lady of Radio, will begin her eleventh year of radio broadcasting tonight when she presents another of her popular "Variety Hours" over WGST at 7 o'clock.

As her special guest, Kate will have the talented young Broadway and Hollywood actor, John Garfield, who will appear in an original drama during the dramatic portion of the program.

Garfield will take the leading role in a microphone version of "The Gentle People," a story of some simple people who rebelled against the extortions of a petty gangster and took the law into their own hands. Franchot Tone played the role on Broadway with Sylvia Sydney.

Miss Smith will sing the lyrics to several popular tunes. The Ted Streater Chorus, the Mullen Sisters and the Smart Set will complete the vocal cast. Jack Miller's band will provide the orchestration. Min and Charlie (Minerva Pious and Charlie Cantor) will take the comedy assignments.

WESTERN TO BE PLAYED ON "HOLLYWOOD PREMIERE"

"The Outlaw," a story of Billy the Kid, easygoing youngster famed throughout the old west for his speed at the trigger, will be the picture to be previewed over Louella Parsons' "Hollywood Premiere" program over WGST at 9 o'clock tonight.

The stars will be Jane Russell and Jack Buettel, the latest discoveries of Howard Hughes, the producer and director of the picture. They will play the same parts that they portrayed in the screen version. Jane Russell will play the role of Rio McDonald, part Mexican, who is out to get the Kid (played by Buettel), because he killed her brother.

Miss Parsons will present the stars to the radio audience in her role as hostess.

DAMROSCH TO PRESENT HISTORY OF OVERTURE

Dr. Walter Damrosch will conduct the NBC Symphony Orchestra in a program tracing the history and development of the overture, from Gluck to Wagner, in the final "Music Appreciation Hour" broadcast of the season today at 1 o'clock over WSB.

With this program, Dr. Damrosch will be fulfilling an ambition he has had for several seasons to put on an all-overture program. The program today will be a full hour.

The program in detail: Overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis," Gluck. Overture to "Marriage of Figaro," Mozart. Egmont Overture, Beethoven. Roman Carnival Overture, Berlioz. Overture to "Tannhauser," Wagner.

Save Buttons.

South Africa has officially decreed a trouser-button saving campaign. Surplus prison service buttons and all trouser buttons on condemned clothing must be sent to a storage center in Pretoria. According to an expert 2,000 persons are affected. Approximately 24 buttons go to each uniform, so that at any given time about 50,000 buttons are in use, estimates this expert.

Tripoli Wounds Are Fatal to Italian General

Chief of Staff of North African Supreme Command Dies.

ROME, May 1.—The chief of staff of the Italian supreme command in north Africa, Brigadier General Alighiero Miele, has died of wounds received during a British aerial attack on Tripoli, main Axis base on the Libyan coast, it was announced tonight.

The 54-year-old Italian chief of staff, a key figure in the intensified German-Italian drive toward the Suez canal, was said to have died on April 27 from a bomb wound received during the British aerial attack.

The Italian high command meanwhile reported Italian paratroopers have occupied the Greek islands of Cephalonia and Zante, west of Patras on the Greek west coast.

The occupation of the islands occurred yesterday under protection of bombers and chaser planes, it was said, and today infantry units from Albania landed on the island of Santa Maura (Levkas), also off the Greek west coast and north of Cephalonia.

Military authorities announced that Italian students had written so many letters volunteering to enlist that all students in classes from 1915 to 1920 who have postponed military service because of their studies will be called to the colors during the first two weeks in June.

Smith, of Detroit, yesterday board by the American As-Agencies.

Guy C. Smith New Chairman Of Ad Board

Says Advertising Faces Biggest Task in Its History.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., May 1.—
(AP)—The American Association of Advertising Agencies at a closed session of its 24th annual meeting at the Homestead today named
C. Smith, executive vice president of Brooke, Smith, French & Dorrance, Inc., Detroit, chairman of the board.

John Benson, elected president in 1940 for a four-year term, will continue in office.

Other officers named today by the association included:

B. B. Geyer, president of Geyer, Cornell & Newell, Inc., New York, president of Van Sant, Dugdale & vice president; Wilbur Van Sant, Company, Inc., Baltimore, secretary, and E. DeWitt Hill, vice president of McCann-Erickson, Inc., New York, treasurer (re-elected).

Smith told the convention that "expansion of production facilities resulting from the defense program will place upon advertising the most tremendous task in its history."

The statement was made as part of Smith's speech of acceptance.
"The end of the war," Smith said, "will find America with a production capacity far beyond anything previously dreamed. And it is my belief that if this capacity is to be constructively used for the benefit of the people as a whole, it will be because the production, flow and use of consumer goods is stimulated by advertising in volume and power far beyond anything seen in this country before."

Fight Develops On Fees For City Insurance

Couch Ordered Paid for Services After Attack on West.

A fight over insurance fees in connection with the award of an insurance contract on city-operated boilers to the Maryland Casualty Company yesterday led State Senator Hugh Couch, of the Fulton county district, to attack
B. Graham West, city comptroller, before a city council finance committee meeting.

West made the award at the written request of a majority of members of the finance committee and Mayor LeCraw, placing it through County Commissioner Gloria Hailey, who acted for Moore-Fletcher, Inc., but Couch said he submitted a bid for the same company for the same premiums and that Hailey had failed to follow a recommendation by city officials that he be paid a broker's fee in connection with the transaction.

Couch charged that West is associated with Moore (Wiley L.
Moore, Atlanta financier), because West is vice president and treasurer of the Southern Insurance & Securities Corporation and treasurer of the Southern Fire & Marine Insurance Company of Georgia, in which Moore has large holdings.

"I don't think any man has the right to take public business and convert it into private gain," Couch said, "and I'm not going to take it lying down."

West elicited from Couch admission that the city bought good insurance as cheaply as Couch was offering it.

"The committee told me to make the award to the lowest and best bid, and I had the guts to do it," West said. "I have no apology to make to you (Couch) or to anyone else for my action in the matter. I did just what the committee told me to do. I am not interested in the least in Moore-Fletcher, Inc."

Couch contended he was entitled to a part of the fee and insisted that the committee order Hailey to pay off, saying he would give it to the Red Cross or any other charity the committee designated, but that he was fighting for a principle.
Committee members passed resolutions asking that a brokerage fee be paid Couch by the successful bidder, but did not stipulate the amount.

Maoris Horrify Nazi 'Chutists In Epic Battle

Blood-Curdling War Cries Precede Slaughter at Corinth.

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN.
WITH THE BRITISH EVACUATED FROM GREECE, VIA CAIRO, May 1.—(UP)—The rear guard of Britain's army rescued from Greece battled and defeated thousands of German parachute troops landed on the Gulf of Corinth in a last desperate effort to entrap the battered "Anzacs" whose valor had piled Greece's mountain passes with German dead.

Red and white parachutes carried German infantry, machine-guns and even heavy mortars to earth, to battle New Zealand Maoris rushing at them with blood-curdling native war cries and leaping in war dances.

Laying down their wounded and dying, whom they had lugged all the way down from Mount Olympus, the Australians and New Zealanders wrote an epic last chapter to the Battle of Greece against an attack that "filled the air with falling parachutes."

Throughout those final hours of agony, the British Imperials were under a merciless deluge of German bombs which made the evacuation from Greece "worse than Dunkirk."

Germans Ruled Skies.
It was worse because the German Luftwaffe, aided by an elaborate espionage system set up in Greece, was able, with its crushing superiority, to shatter the RAF's airdromes and virtually rule the skies over Greece and the Greek coasts, I was told by the battle-worn survivors who came out of Greece with me.

But while the struggle lasted—through the final bitter battle against the parachutists on the Gulf of Corinth—the British gave them "perfect hell," in the words of a rugged Australian brigadier. Unable to halt the British evacuations despite the murderous rain of bombs, the Germans landed parachute troops by the thousands at a principal bridge of the Corinth canal west of Athens, the Daphne naval base and other points around Athens in an effort to entrap and annihilate the British Imperial rear guard.

Blew Up Canal.
Reich Marshal Hermann Goering's crack parachutists—they seemed to fill the sky—blew up the Corinth canal bridge in an attempt to cut off British escape and battled the "Aussies" and New Zealanders in fierce hand-to-hand combat.

It was the last battle of Greece. The air was filled with parachutes, some of which failed to open, a grimy Australian almost unable to stand because of fatigue told me as we zigzagged across the Mediterranean aboard a transport crammed with troops and dogged by German bombers.

"The Germans dropped to earth hundreds at a time. Some of them were killed instantly as they hit the ground like a rock and bounded into the air."

"The Germans used red parachutes for landing mortars and white ones for soldiers and machine-guns."

"The fields and roadways were littered with corpses swathed in the folds of parachutes like shrouds, killed either by the failure of their chutes to open or by our fire."

"I can tell you our Maoris gave those Jerries the fright of their lives."

"The Maoris rushed at them in bunches shouting native war cries and leaping up and down in their tribal war dances."

"Hitler's young blitzmen ran for their lives, but more battalions rained from the sky to reinforce them."

Because of the blowing up of the bridge some of the New Zealanders were cut off from escape and were compelled, against what must have seemed suicidal odds, to fight their way to the coast hour after hour as Nazi machine-guns on motorcycles slashed in upon them.

"We fought through to the beaches where our navy's guns gave us protection and jumped into whatever boats we could find to get out to our ships," one of the Australians related.

"Many of our boats were rid-dled with bullets."

Near Sunium the Germans landed parachute troops but most of them were carried out to sea and drowned when the wind suddenly shifted. The others were picked off like birds on a limb as they floated down.

Fight to Death.

In the vicinity of Daphne naval base the parachute troops co-operated with German "panzer" land forces and it was here that the fierce-fighting Greek Evzones made a solemn pact with the New Zealander comrades to fight to death, to the last man.

They went into action with flashing bayonets against the encircling German parachutists until there were only dead Germans around them. Then they headed for the beaches.

The main beaches used for the amazing British evacuations were Porto Rafi, Neuplion, Megara, Kalamata, Theodoros and Gifuoin in the Athens region.

The rescue ships, protected by British warships of all sizes and types, moved in under the murderous attacks of Germany's dive-bombing Stukas—and we went out the same way—hugging the coast and halting to pick up exhausted stragglers waving frantically.

The last British Imperials to leave, after the final struggle against the parachute troops, were men almost dropping with fatigue themselves but wading out into the water with wounded comrades on their backs.

All Roads Bombed.
Hour upon hour every road and by-way leading south from Athens and toward the Gulf of Corinth was bombed by the Luftwaffe.

Ships in ports were set ablaze and trucks tumbled into huge bomb craters in the road and overturned.

The roads and valleys screamed with death as the men of the British expeditionary force trudged to the beaches, bandaged but unbroken, their wounded carried on their backs or limping along with aid of others.

I jumped along, dodging bombs and fighting fatigue and hunger, beside these valiant veterans of an epic struggle against insurmountable odds.

They were the sons of Britain's "Old Contemptibles," cockneys and uppercrust, Anzacs who had rekindled the flame of Gallipoli and Flanders fields.

They had fought their way down from the snowy mountains to the north, battling every step of the way. At night they crouched in ravines and gulleys to escape the fury of the Luftwaffe. Dawn brought more fighting against the terrific odds.

Wounded Whisked Away.
Many of the British rear guard forces were forced to struggle down through the Peloponnese to escape. These included men of the Royal Air Force who had lost their planes in the bombardments of their airdromes by wave upon wave of dive-bombers.

An officer of the RAF told how the wounded were loaded in a rowboat and taken out to a waiting Sunderland flying boat which, under constant bombing and machine-gunning, shuttled back and forth in relays from Greece and points of safety across the Mediterranean.

"A husky sergeant held our rowboat fast to the Sunderland and formed a bridge with his broad back over which the wounded were passed," the flying officer related.

Dutch naval officers, whose ship was sunk by German dive-bombers while aiding in the evacuation, told me that more than 2,000 men were aboard when the ship was bombed but every man was saved within 45 minutes.

"Destroyers and lifeboats came alongside and took them out to other craft. It was marvelous to watch the coolness of those men," the Dutch officers said.

I came out of Flanders with the British a year ago and I can agree with the imperial veterans of Greece—many of them also remember Dunkerque—that the bombing there was nothing compared to what we have just been through.

Aboard one of the ships of a convoy we reconstructed the battle of Greece and why it failed. First of all, the Imperials agreed that the all-out battle they were itching to give the Germans in Greece was made impossible by the German "panzer" thrust across Libya into Egypt.

Secondly, the Greeks were unable to stand the strain of furious mechanized and aerial warfare by a new enemy vastly superior to the Italians whom they had given such a drubbing for six months. Then there was the vast numerical superiority of the Germans—great masses of men thrown against the British without any regard for loss of life.

But the big factor was Reichsmarshal Hermann W. Goering's Luftwaffe, hundreds of planes used as artillery against the Allied front lines and communications while swarms of other Nazi planes frustrated, by a systematic bombing of airdromes, every attempt of the RAF to parry the aerial blows.

When it came time for the evacuation the Germans had the air to themselves.

LAKELAND HOSTS.

Robert St. John Reaches Egypt, Is Wounded

Leigh White, CBS Employee, Also Hit by Bullet.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 2.—(Friday)—Two wounded American newspapermen, one of them Robert St. John, of The Associated Press, reached safety here early today after living through the successive dangers of a 400-mile voyage in a small boat and the British evacuation from Greece.

St. John, missing since the German army invaded Yugoslavia and blasted communications with the little kingdom, was slightly wounded in the leg by machine-gun fire.

Also safe was Leigh White, of Columbia Broadcasting System and the Overseas News Agency, but he was hit in the thigh by two of a stream of bullets which crashed through the roof of the train he was riding from Patras, Greece, to Corinth.

White, and presumably St. John, made their way to Corinth after leaving Greece from Yugoslavia in a small rowboat equipped with a motor.

White was treated at Argos, Greece, hospital, where a British Royal Air Force surgeon performed over 400 operations on wounded persons, many of them Greek civilians.

Some seriously wounded British soldiers had to be left behind at

British Withstood 50 Bombings Daily

CAIRO, May 1.—(AP)—In their flight and withdrawal from Greece, British troops were bombed at least 50 times a day with no way of hitting back.

"Just wait, the Hurricanes will come," one New Zealand corporal told his complaining men, speaking as tenderly as a mother soothing a child. "They must be holding them back to let the Jerries have it all at once."

But the Hurricanes did not come.

As an example of what the RAF was up against, the Germans one morning attacked the Argos landing field every three minutes until every plane there was destroyed.

Argos when the British moved on to boats that took them to safety.

Among American refugees in Crete are Mary Brock, wife of Ray Brock, New York Times correspondent in Belgrade, and Professor and Mrs. Gardner, of the American Farm School at Salonika, Greece.

Charles House, president of the school, remained in Salonika.

The last report on St. John and White said that on April 16 they had left Kotor, Yugoslavia, in the rowboat for Greece. With them were Leon Kay, of the United Press, and Russell Hill, of the New York Herald-Tribune.

In New York, the Herald-Tribune said Hill also had arrived at Cairo. The United States world had been received of Kay thus far.

Lindy Always Pro-German, British Charge

Flyer Said Hindrance To Action Against Nazis.

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—R. A. Butler, undersecretary of foreign affairs, answered "yes" in the house of commons today to a member who asked him whether Charles A. Lindbergh had no "consistently, always used his influence to prevent effective action against Germany."

His questioner was Conservative member S. V. T. Adams.

The brief discussions involving Lindbergh brought a statement from Butler that the American flyer views on the strength of the Soviet Union about the time of the Munich pact in September 1938, were considered of "no undue significance" by the British government.

The house cheered this declaration.

Butler refused to answer Laborite Ellis Smith's query whether Lindbergh had used his influence "along with a well-known lady member of this house."

Also responding to a question Butler said records showed that Lindbergh's views were available for the government's consideration. Asked, however, whether Lindbergh ever had been interviewed by the foreign office, the undersecretary answered, "Not as far as I am aware."

God Has a Purpose

In a recent letter written by the rector of a church in England to a member of the faculty of the University of Georgia, the writer states, "Many of us have come to the conclusion we would not have missed the spiritual privileges of the past year of war. . . . We feel as we gather for prayer, or to the Sunday services, that we are really in touch with God. The power of God is very manifest in our midst. . . .

"There is a deeper interest in one another. Denomination, to a great extent, has gone by the board. Facing danger together . . . has drawn all those who are one in Christ to one another. . . .

"I am convinced that out of this struggle we are going to see, if the Lord tarry, a new manifestation of God's presence and power. . . . God has not allowed us to go through this tribulation without some wise purpose. Things spiritual and eternal are becoming much more real than things temporal. . . .

Those words were written by a man in a town which has suffered severely by air raids. In his own words, "The town is scarred, but not scared!"

We, so far free from actual experience of all the horror of modern war, can know nothing of the emotional and spiritual reactions that come to a people who have passed, and our passing, through the fiery furnace.

Fire is the element which burns away the dross, leaving only the pure metal. Tribulation and suffering has ever been the fire which has burned away the unsavouriness of human life and has left mankind a finer and a nobler creature.

In history, both secular and divine, are innumerable instances of the use, by God, of suffering in order to bring man nearer to His purpose. Sodom and Gomorrah were left in ashes upon the plains and from the survivors, Lot and his family, God built a finer people.

Undoubtedly, in recent years, the world drifted too far from things spiritual and has attached too great importance to the material. There had developed a cynicism, a scornfulness for the really true things and a prideful reliance upon human ingenuity alone.

This is true in the United States, is true to large extent today. The fire has not yet touched this land. Let us pray, with utmost sincerity, that spiritual reawakening may come without the necessity of the ordeal by war.

In Britain, too, the people had to large extent lost their grip upon the truths of the spirit. There is indication, in the letter quoted, that the flames of war are serving a purpose and are bringing the people there ever closer to realization in the universal brotherhood of man and to truer evaluation of those spiritual things which are, in the final analysis, the only true values.

"Denomination, to a great extent, has gone by the board—"

If war is wiping out the lines of sects in Britain, if Christians there are turning to a simple brotherhood of faith, who can say that the benefits brought by the bombs of the Luftwaffe do not immeasurably offset the loss.

Britishers are learning a new understanding of the reality of national life. They are learning that the fate of the individual is as nothing compared to the preservation of a nation and its ideals.

They are finding, despite the roar of bursting bombs, an inward calm and quiet that passes the power of words to describe.

No man, yet, may know the outcome of the war. No man may predict the shape of the world that is to come after the last gun is silent.

Yet, judging by this and other letters from Britain, one shining fact emerges out of the shambles and the material ruin of a civilization.

That fact is that through suffering the peoples of war-wracked Britain are refining their souls. The same must be true of enslaved nations in Europe proper.

War may yet prove to be the great refiner, through which mankind shall emerge a little closer to God's ideal than in the former days of peace.

One thing is certain. God has his own purpose for all the horrors through which this generation lives. In His due time, the manner of His building shall be revealed.

Among miscellaneous late records is that of a male visitor to Reno who was given the divorce and three minutes later was under new management.

A Way To Help

Tens of thousands of persons have ached for a method by which they can, individually, help in the rearmament for defense program which the United States is today pushing with all its available force. Many of these have eagerly joined in various movements, most of them worthy, through which they could feel they were doing something for their country in this time of emergency, either through strengthening our first line of defense, Britain, or in upbuilding morale among our own people for the terrible trials which lie ahead.

Today a real opportunity for real contribution to the cause is open for everyone. Now each man, woman or child, according to their means, may give visible, valuable aid to the defense program.

At the postoffices in this area defense stamps go on sale today. They are in denominations as small as 10 cents, ranging up to $5. Purchasers will receive a small pocket album in which they may keep their defense stamps until sufficient have accumulated to buy a United States defense bond.

One of these bonds of $25 denomination may be bought for $18.75. At the end of 10 years it is redeemable at face value, $25, or may be redeemed any time after the first year at cost plus accumulated interest.

There is no one who cannot contribute 10 cents, at regular intervals, to the cause of his country's safety. Many can give more than this. When the desirability of the investment is added to the desire to help in the big fight, the urge to buy these stamps should be irresistible.

Begin regular purchase of your United States defense stamps today. You will thus be sharing with Uncle Sam in defending the land we all love from enemies who would ravage it, both materially and spiritually.

In tumultuous Europe, if one-half doesn't know how the other half lives, it blows a side off the house and looks.

Wears No Man's Hat

Admirers of individual independence today find new reason for support of Atlanta's Mayor Roy LeCraw. For hizzoner has emphasized, in the full glare of publicity, that he will wear no hat of any description. He thus takes his stand with that fearless throng of candidates and office holders who have declared they will wear no man's collar. What's the difference, a collar or a hat?

Despite the blandishments of Atlanta's most persuasive hat salesmen, regardless of the allure of the colorful headgear offered in the newly arrived straw hat season, Mayor LeCraw clings to his favorite idiosyncrasy and will continue to appear, on all occasions, bareheaded.

Others may slip furtively within the hat emporium and permit the affable clerk within to place atop their craniums such fantasies that all the kick is taken out of gibes at the hats of the women. But not Mayor LeCraw. His is a free soul, with free hair exposed defiantly to sun and wind.

But what will the mayor do when, and if, he is called to the military service of Uncle Sam? Will he defy regulations and refuse to wear Army headgear, from fatigue cap to tin helmet?

It may surprise the young president of the New York Stock Exchange, now enrolled in the Army, to know the old sergeant's dice are not subject to scrutiny by the SEC.

Brother Willie opens an office in New York and is available for jobs of a legal nature, such as drawing the old guard's last testament or something.

Georgia Editors Say:

LINDBERGH RESIGNS.

(From the Brunswick News.)

The action of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in resigning his reserve commission in the United States Army Air Corps is the only solution to what has become an exceedingly regrettable case.

Since Lindbergh's ideas are at variance with those of the government, and since he appears to admire the dictators above our way of freedom, it was inappropriate, to say the least, that he should remain an officer in the country's army. The flyer is unwilling to fight for the very things which we may have to fight for, hence any aerial knowledge which he might possess would be worthless to us.

Lindbergh's resignation brings to a close another chapter in his amazing career. The public has never understood Lindbergh and it is not likely that it ever will. He is a cold, strange character who has defied most of society's conventions. Once a great public hero, he has apparently deliberately sought to destroy that popularity.

He accepted the hospitality of the British in his hour of sorrow only to knife that country in the back when she needed support and understanding. This being a free country, Lindbergh no doubt will continue to espouse his appeasement policy, but it is gratifying that he shall do it as an individual citizen and not as an officer of our army. The Lindbergh resignation will serve the Nazis well, for they undoubtedly will interpret it—not in its true light—but as a protest against this country's "meddling" in the affairs of Europe. Perhaps the flyer can serve Germany but he is of no use to us.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

CHURCHILL'S SPEECH, II WASHINGTON, May 1.—In his great speech Sunday, Winston Churchill gave the President's new Atlantic system as proof that "westward the last system was a dead end." It was the best evidence he had, unfortunately. But no one should be deceived into thinking the patrol system anything but a makeshift compromise, in defense of which competent naval authorities can offer only a feeble, conventional murmur of hope.

The theory of the patrol system is that American ships and planes will spot German planes and submarines for the British, warning convoys away and summoning the British navy and air force. This is merely an extension out into the Atlantic of the old neutrality patrol in hemisphere waters. Although few persons realized it at the time, the neutrality patrol also spotted German craft for the British, since its reports were purposely sent in simple navy code. The President once grimly remarked that "if the British couldn't break the code, they were much stupider than he thought."

The weakness of the compromise can be seen by comparing it with the real shipping protection system for which the patrols are a substitute. This system, worked out by a British-American joint committee which met quietly in Washington until a few weeks ago, calls on the British and American navies to clear a safe sea lane for merchant shipping from Halifax to Greenland, to Iceland, to northern Scotland, where the British navy alone is to take over the task of coastal convoying. The system is reported to be perfected to the final detail. American officers, led by the admiral who is to have charge of it, are even understood to have visited Britain to make the necessary arrangements at that end. All is in readiness, except that the President has not given the word.

Furthermore, it is impossible to discover any really well-informed member of the administration who does not regard the President's giving the word as a mere matter of time. In the last few days, according to the Navy's reports, German submarine and air activity in the Atlantic areas has declined, and shipping losses have dropped proportionally. Before then, however, losses were downright appalling. Even now the British are steadily using up their reserve stocks of all sorts, and their orders for steel and other war materials are piling up at the factories here while food receives shipping priority. It is estimated that their minimum import deficiency in the next month will be from 500,000 to 600,000 tons. In short, if the President intends to pursue his policy to its logical conclusion, he cannot delay giving the word much beyond two months more.

GERMAN LAKE These facts only serve to underline the bitter irony of the American position. For if we could do immediately what everyone believes we shall do soon, we should have a good chance of restoring the Mediterranean situation, as well as meeting the Atlantic danger.

It was pointed out in this space yesterday that, owing to Turkish and Russian sogginess, the Germans will probably have a clear road to the vital oil of Iran and Iraq. The picture in the eastern Mediterranean is as dark as it will can be. But if the British hold in Egypt, and the western Mediterranean does not go also, the loss of Iran and Iraq will only confront the British Mediterranean fleet with a grave supply problem. For even now the Germans only have sufficient transport to bring a comparatively small percentage of Rumanian oil into western Europe. They can hardly get much use from Iranian and Iraqi oil unless they are able to carry it past eastern Europe to the western port of Marseilles, where transport facilities are far better. This they cannot do until the Mediterranean is a German lake.

As to Egypt, the outlook is not bright, but far from hopeless. The supply lines of the German mechanized divisions in Libya are infinitely long and tenuous. In the last days, heavy reinforcements both of men and material have been landed at Alexandria. So far, the German armies have held the Germans and Italians back despite their numerical superiority. But even assuming that the drive to Suez is halted, the outlook in French North Africa and the Iberian peninsula is extremely black.

The position of Marshal Weygand in French North Africa has been seriously undermined. In Casa Blanca—a port on the Atlantic, it should be remembered—more than 200 German military men and Gestapo agents are in virtual control of the situation. Elsewhere in his provinces Weygand must deal with internal troubles fomented by the Germans, while preparing to ward off dangers from without.

In Spain, renewed German pressure for an invitation to pass the Pyrenees has just been resisted by General Franco, despite the best efforts of his pro-German brother-in-law, Ramon Serrano Suner. Spain is a foodless desert, populated by an angry, anti-foreign people, now riddled with typhus, and destitute of all but rudimentary transport facilities. The Germans want, for these reasons, to come in by invitation, which would be far easier for them. But come they now plan to in the end, according to the best authorities here. If they come, both French North Africa and Portugal, with its magnificent Atlantic port of Lisbon, will fall into their hands. And the fortress of Gibraltar and the base in Egypt will then be isolated and ineffectual.

KING-TARQUIN The German hesitation on the Spanish border promises a few weeks' breathing spell. During that short space, in the opinion of many of the ablest American strategists, it is within this country's power to reverse the trend of events in the western Mediterranean by resorting to the shipping protection system now waiting to be put in force. That will commit the United States. It will have an overwhelming effect on morale in every nation, and particularly those nations and territories threatened with German aggression. Above all, it will have the German time-table still further, and make the German high command hesitate to take on far-flung new commitments. Under the circumstances, American policy offers a tragic parallel to the behavior of King Tarquin, who had to pay the Cumean Sibyl the same price for three of her celebrated books as he was originally asked for 12.

An active newspaper reporter, particularly one on a morning paper who works the night shift on, say, police or hospital runs, unavoidably becomes very familiar with the undercurrents of life in a great city. Undercurrents the average citizen, who finishes his business duties in daylight and goes home to dinner and quiet evenings of reading or bridge or social visits, knows little about.

Years ago it used to be my job to cover some of those night assignments. I knew, then, the habits of the less respectable members of the community, those apt to be hauled into the bull pen at police station and booked on various charges. Drunk and disorderly. Breaking and entering. Suspicion. Occupancy of a dive, etc.

Of recent years, however, my own hours have become more respectable. I am rarely up town after dark and then only to attend a show or concert or lecture. And I have won a probably desirable ignorance about matters of the local underworld.

Recently, however, I have been reading in the newspapers stories of proposals to eliminate "vice" in Atlanta. I have read where prominent citizens who, presumably, knew whereof they spoke, said Atlanta was one of the most "wide open" of cities, with vice flourishing all around.

So, curious as to the truth, I asked one of our younger reporters, whose job would naturally make him more or less in rapport with the situation, as to the amount of truth in these allegations against the morals of Atlanta.

"Are they telling the truth," I asked him, "or is it the old game of a little publicity seeking?"

He told me about other sections of the city, not so poverty-stricken nor sordid as the first, but where vice and its haunts were to be found. He mentioned some things which would probably surprise most of you, much.

And after the conversation there was one factor which seemed to me, from one viewpoint, rather striking. The section about which he had chiefly spoken is so wretched, so repulsive to average folks, that, after all, I doubt if any even semi-respectable individual would venture there after dark. Thus its very repulsiveness acts as a protection for folks who

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Different Opinions TUCSON, Ariz., May 1.—Raymond Carroll, a reporter who worked in some of the crusades of the old New York Evening World for little reforms on the local front, has written a letter in defense of Senator Robert Wagner, whom he knew a long time ago as a neighborhood politician. He reviews Senator Wagner's early career in New York city and in the legislature and says, "I am not claiming his legislation is perfect or near-perfect, but I do say it is the sincere effort of an honest man."

And that is exactly what I say the legislation isn't—nor Senator Wagner, either. I say the labor relations act was a subtle conspiracy against the right of free American citizens to work at their lawful occupations unmolested by terrorists of the Communistic CIO or extortionists of the AFL or anyone else. I insist that it was and remains an insincere act and that Senator Wagner has been honest neither in the debate which preceded passage of this atrocity against human freedom nor in his refusal since to rescue his victims from the clutches of their legislation put upon them.

I have no patience with the explanation that Senator Wagner is a plodder. That has been overdone on his behalf. He isn't as dumb as that, nor is he too dumb to use that reputation as a defense. He knows as well as any other man what the results of his act have been, and he undoubtedly foresaw what they would be, because when efforts were made to insert provisions to protect American citizens from the horrors which they have suffered since, Senator Wagner deliberately and cunningly jumbled up the argument.

In the debate on May 13, 1935, Senator Tydings, of Maryland, offered an amendment providing that employees should be free from coercion or intimidation "from any source." He offered another for the same purpose, declaring it should be unfair labor practice for "any person" to coerce employees in the exercise of their right not to join any union. Senator Borah said that seemed to him to state a fundamental principle, and Senator Couzens threw in a reminder that "in every big industrial community there is competition between one union and another," attended by "fight" and "bribe."

Nevertheless, Senator Wagner insisted that for protection against brutality and terror the individual, unorganized victims, frightened though they might be, ignorant of their legal rights and without money to hire lawyers, should have to go to their local courts for injunctions. He said this although strong unions had adopted constitutional provisions intended to deter victimized members from appealing to the public courts. And he held that, although his act would construe as coercion and intimidation the slightest mention of unionism by an employer to an employee, nevertheless the professional unioneer and the night-prowling organizer should be free to use peaceful persuasion. The fact that such persuasion might consist of bloody threats and the most fiendish persecution could not have been unknown to the author of labor's Magna Charta, who nevertheless refused to consider any phrase to shield the unorganized from the organized.

Senator Wagner didn't much care for sincere debate and insisted on imputing to Senator Tydings a hidden intention to promote company unions. And Senator David I. Walsh, another statesman no more honest and sincere than Wagner, mocked all past experience and well-known facts and dared the future by saying "the employer is the only person who effectively can coerce an employee." The whole administration bloc banged up on the non-union American citizen who didn't want to join a union or pay tribute and sent him wandering among the gritty corridors of local courts where judges and prosecutors beholden to union politicians would give him the run-around, if they wouldn't quite boot him downstairs as a traitor to his class and kind. Powerful unions had become wary of the courts not for the old given reason that they feared unfairness; they shun the courts only for fear that in open proceedings public attention will be centered on their shocking oppression of the little people and their racketeering at the expense of the whole community.

Senator Wagner and Senator Walsh both well knew the character of the ruthless unioneer and the true nature of the peaceful persuasion which had thrown so many thousands out of jobs, robbed helpless workmen of millions of dollars in fees and dues and left not a few of them for dead.

But even if it be granted, as it never will be by me, that Senator Wagner honestly and sincerely didn't then realize the consequences of his refusal, it can't be said that he doesn't appreciate the consequences now. Yet he still has lifted neither hand nor voice to mend the evil act which bears his name, and that fact will be my answer to the plea on his behalf of our mutual friend, Ray Carroll.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

"CAMPS JEUNESSE" In the past two or three months I have met men who were, a short time ago, leaders in the bitter opposition to Mr. Roosevelt.

Today they have swung around and go to bed nights thanking God for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

If a person will sit down and think out what Roosevelt has done for this country, that person must come to the conclusion that Mr. Roosevelt's foresight has been remarkable; that he has saved this country from an economic and perhaps a civil war; that while there may be, and are, differences of opinion, the man has been so generally right it is something akin to folly stubbornly to oppose his ideas.

I thought of this in New York and on the return to Atlanta. I had talked with two persons, both but a few weeks out of Paris. Both had been there for years, had seen the occupation and lived under it for almost a year.

"One of the first things Hitler did," said both, "was to set up the 'Camps Jeunesse.' Into them he got all the young French boys who can be persuaded or commanded to enter. They are given uniforms, good boots, and certain freedoms. They are taught, and worked, by 'sympathetic' Frenchmen who in turn are 'supervised' by Germans.

"You can imagine what the result is to be. They are being taught the Nazi philosophy, the Nazi ideas and methods," they said. The Nazis have done that sort of thing from the very outset. They will neglect the middle-aged and the old. The young will be taken care of and made into Nazis. German Nazis, Czech Nazis, Dutch Nazis, French Nazis—almost anything can be done with young minds.

What has all this got to do with a beginning about Roosevelt?

A YOUTH MOVEMENT For about three years now, I have been saying here that the Nazi movement was, essentially, a youth movement. Hitler took all the discontent of young Germans and made them into blind, passionately loyal followers of him and his philosophy.

The Versailles treaty? It was cruel, inhuman, unfair. It stood for greed and humiliation, he said. The German youth one day would be strong enough to tear it up.

The reparations payments? They were starving Germany to make her pay for a war she did not lose. The profiteers, the Communists, had stabbed Germany in the back. The war wasn't lost, he assured them. They starved and did not have a share of life because of the democracies.

The Republic? What could it do for them, with its senseless elections and its quarreling parties? What the Germans needed was a leader strong enough to lead them to victory.

The discontent, the hunger, the humiliation of the German people, were at their lowest ebb when the great world depression came.

That was the depression which Herbert Hoover and certain men of standing said we would have weathered if we had just suffered it out without all the methods used by Roosevelt.

There was plenty of misery and bitterness in America in those years.

There was a generation of American boys and girls who would have listened to almost any words. They heard Roosevelt saying we must make Democracy work. We had the CCC camps, which helped boys and girls to go to college; we had the CCC camps, which took them off the streets and put them to work and made them aid in the support of their families. We had WPA jobs for young people.

Some of the money appeared to be spent in a foolish wasteful fashion. Undoubtedly some of it was so spent. Time was when I thought much of it was wasted. I doubt it now.

"SUFFERING IT OUT" Our camps for the young taught nothing which made Nazis out of the boys and girls in them. All of them kept talking about a better America, about making it a more democratic country.

The countries where they did try to suffer out the world depression saw Hitler and Mussolini and their smaller counterparts spring up to take this discontent and bitterness of youth and mold it into a strength which today has conquered most of the world. Roosevelt could have taken that bitterness and discontent and done terrible things with it.

Those who charged him with wanting to be a dictator must know now how ridiculous were the charges. He could have been easily.

We may come out of this war with some form of dictatorship to hold things in check until the world is able to live in peace. If so, we can be thankful it is Roosevelt who is at the head of the government. His record is there for all to read. He believes in the democratic process. And if it is necessary to give to him powers such as England has given its Winston Churchill, we need not worry about that because we know that he, like Churchill, will give them back when the time is ready. And that he will help make ready the time to give them back.

The war ought to unify us and give to us more strength of national purpose than we have ever had.

Discontent is a greater weapon than tanks or planes. And when it is made to man those tanks and planes the world knows what it can do.

We've been a little lucky, after all.

Dreaming Is Never Foolish If It Develops the Energy To Make The Dream Come True

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Much criticism of "wishful thinking" in recent months has given many people the idea that all wishing is shameful, but that isn't what the critics were trying to say.

Wishful thinking is not wishing, but believing thistles will grow figs because that arrangement would please us. That folly has made trouble for America since the beginning.

When the frontier was east of the Appalachians, a man living in a forest shack three days' journey from the nearest settlement, said to his wife, "Yes, I saw some painted savages, but they ain't hostile. Even if they are, they would be afraid to attack us. You needn't worry." And that night he and his family were scalped.

At about the same time a frontier woman said to her husband: "I wish we had another ox, so we could clear another 10 acres for wheat. And I wish we had a parson who could set up a regular school for our younguns and preach to us on Sundays. And soon thereafter there was another ox, another 10 acres in wheat, a parson and a school.

Years later, men were saying: "We licked her once and we can do it again. She can't hurt us without landing troops, and we'll shoot 'em as fast as they land."

Joins His Honor in Hope for New Floor For the Auditorium

Mayor LeCraw attended the grand op'ry a few evenings ago—possibly thereby losing the votes of the great common people when he runs again—if they don't forget. They usually do.

Roy acquired a stiff neck by ducking and dodging his head this way and that to see the stage past the person in front. So did I. One night I drew a dowager with a lot of gray hair most beautifully coiffured—but hardly worth five bucks to look at. The next time my immediate foreground was a male person more than six feet tall and two feet wide who must wear a size 9 hat when he wears one. He didn't have it on during the opera. Life still has its compensations.

The Mayor says he will favor spending $10,000 to install a sloping floor in our new auditorium. Which brought him the applause of concert and opera patrons. I'll add mine.

But why didn't the architects and builders think of a sloping floor when they were tearing down the old brick barn—except for its shell—and designing a new one? Had they never been inside a theater?

That new auditorium has been a pain in the neck since our fair city saw a chance to grab off a bunch of government money and remodel the old structure. It embraces virtually every fault a temple of music could have. The seats are comfortable, it is true, but you can't see anything from them. I'm speaking of the main floor. When the designers and builders had completed the balcony and eager patrons arrived to sit in it they discovered the front rail or parapet was built so high—possibly to prevent some music addict from jumping over it. Heifetz busted an E-string—that one couldn't see the stage and the artists without a step ladder. So that was torn down and done all over.

One Lucky Break.

About the only pleasant feature of the new auditorium is that the front end of it was partly burned and the rest torn away. This hardly adds to the classic beauty of the facade but it is something.

There's no reason to comment on the acoustics, which are bad in a large part of the house. Acoustics, like colds in the head, are hard to control. You get 'em or you don't. Sometimes they can be doctored.

I haven't the figures at hand but from what I remember seeing in the public prints it cost more to remodel the grand old barn than it did to build it in the first place.

The ancient structure might, it seems after mature reflection, have been retained as a shrine of dog and chicken shows, machinery exhibits and wrestling matches. It would have served most satisfactorily.

And the money spent might have been used to erect a brand-new auditorium, properly designed and equipped, for use by concert artists and the opera and such spectacles as our cognoscenti might think up. Then we'd have two.

But, after all, if I want to run the city's affairs I ought to get into politics and acquire an official position. And I have an idea that would be somewhat difficult.

Anyway, I'm thankful we do have a building sufficiently large—with a stage and all that—to make Metropolitan opera possible. Not every city can offer that.

Thing of Beauty.

Something the opera engagement did for several thousand Atlantans—if they were not in a terrific hurry to reach the clubs or were headed in the wrong direction—was to give them a first glimpse of the electric fountain in the park in front of the auditorium. I got my second look at it, while blocking traffic for some time. I reach that part of town about once in a grey mule's age and rarely after dark.

I'd like to say a thousand people have told me—but that would be a lie and I'd better make it twenty—that they've never seen that fountain in operation. They're the same folk who have never seen the Cyclorama. They mean to—come you know how it is! Friends come in or the car acquires a flat or there's a fine picture just starting.

I suggest it would be a mighty fine idea to drive down town some evening and take a good long look at that rainbow fountain, with its colors changing from rose to crimson and blue and gold—and maybe a few more hues. I hope it is in operation every evening through the summer. If it isn't tell me and I'll call up the Mayor and give him a few orders.

No, on second thought, it might be better for you to call him. I don't vote in the city.

Finland and U. S. Refinance Debt

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Finland, which lost its standing as the only up-to-date payer on World War debts last December, contracted with the Treasury to catch up.

Finnish Minister Hjalmar J. Procope and Treasury Secretary Morgenthau signed an agreement under which Finland will pay up in 10 annual installments, with interest at 3 per cent, the $235,398 semi-annual installment which Finland failed to pay last December 15.

Finland owes the Treasury altogether $8,126,622, but most of it has not come due. Finland also has received $35,000,000 credits from the Export-Import Bank.

Technically, Finland is not in default, as a joint resolution of congress authorized postponement of the payment.

The first payment on the new contract, $13,695, will be made by Finland on June 15. A similar amount will be due December 15.

FOR ALL-OUT AID NOW

Editor Constitution: It disturbs me that a considerable segment of our population, particularly those conservative business institutions which seem to follow a golden rule of "safety first," feel that we shouldn't get too worked up over this war. While these people seem to favor England's winning, they are willing to help her do so, business should go on as usual and beyond a certain point we should not get too worked up over the war.

I am worked up over the war! I am also worked up over the fact that only a small portion of our people presently realize that Hitler is out to conquer the world and make slaves of all peoples including, if he can, the American people.

In my opinion we have got to go to all-out aid to Britain without a week's delay, and this aid should mean convoying ships and perhaps flying some of our own bombers to Europe to save England from a defeat she may be facing within a month.

Hitler has a ruthless, merciless—it is superfluous to say an honorless—and powerful machine, whose only code is force, bent on conquering the world. He is conquering it. No one is stopping him. Only this country can stop him. We must stop him! I am convinced that the only way we can stop him is for this country to become during the emergency and until he is stopped just a little more ruthless and a good deal tougher than he is.

We are undoubtedly at the stage where very positive action on all fronts is necessary.

NOT TIME TO SPEND ON STONE MOUNTAIN

Editor Constitution: On page 6 of Monday's issue of your paper you have a splendid article—"There Is a Time for Everything." Now, don't you think this, also, applies to the proposal to obtain $3,000,000 for the "Stone Mountain Memorial?"

This is not the time to throw away federal money on a proposition that has been a disgrace for more than 15 years.

Youth, To Be Deported, Fights Nine; Delays Ship

MANILA, May 1.—(AP)—Departure of the steamship President Pierce for the United States was delayed an hour tonight while Hermann Vogel, 26, identified by police as a German national, battled two immigration officers and seven policemen in attempting to avoid deportation as an undesirable alien.

Vogel finally was subdued and placed aboard ship. He will be removed by immigration authorities when the vessel reaches San Francisco.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

I have just spent an hour, reading a batch of mail from England, arriving, evidently, on the same boat. In this mail I find renewed evidence of the sustaining sources of strength which explain the otherwise inexplicable morale of the British people. Believing that the reader would like to have a few questions from this mail, I am here selecting a few paragraphs which have greatly helped me:

From Dr. M. E. Aubrey, secretary of the British Baptist Union: "It is not through fear or panic we come to Him, for our country shows no signs of fear or panic. Nor do we pray because we think prayer has some magic power to turn the course of events according to our judgment. It does not disturb any man who thinks of prayer as our Lord Jesus Christ did, to be told that the capitulation of France followed close upon a previous day of prayer, or the worst effects of the bombing of London came soon after another day of prayer. We know that God, in His wisdom, does not always answer us as we, with our short views, would like. Wars without disasters and disappointments do not happen. In every sphere of life great purposes are only achieved by paying a great price. Prayer makes us ready for the cost when we pray, 'Father, Thy will, not mine, be done.' Our faith is in Him. We believe our country is seeing what is right now. We must know that we are co-operating with Him. 'They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength.'"

From the Archbishop of Canterbury: "We need to betake ourselves to all possible sources of strength, three of which I briefly mention. First, thankfulness for blessings already received. When we review the valor and courage of our people through these months of suffering, we have good reason to thank God, to take courage, and to be strong. Second, the greatness of our cause. This struggle is not for our own safety only, but for the freedom of other nations, and indeed of the whole world. The very magnitude of our cause must compel us to seek a strength that is greater than our own. Third, we must find that strength in God. There is a deepest source of strength to which I bid you turn."

From Principal Hamilton Fyfe, of Aberdeen University: "Christians know what God expects. God expects the impossible. And Christians have achieved it—humble, wholehearted Christians in every generation. It is certainly not true to say that ours is yet a Christian society, but all that we most genuinely value in our civilization is Christian. We value human personality, and freedom for its full development. We value compassion and fidelity and self-sacrifice. Deny this, and Christian teaching must be silenced, as it has been elsewhere. What moves men to heroic action is their faith in God, not what they say, but what they genuinely believe. We are sustained in the belief that

How Checkup Led to Seizure Of Ships Told

Routine Investigation of Italian Vessel Described Here.

The United States Coast Guard's own story of events leading up to the recent seizures of German and Italian ships in American harbors was told here yesterday by M. L. Hudgins, chief boatswain, United States Coast Guard.

Hudgins, interviewed over station WGST under sponsorship of the Office of Government Reports, said the ship seizures were ordered after Coast Guardsmen, in making a routine check of the Italian merchantman, Villapera, in the harbor at Wilmington, N. C., discovered the ship's water pump had been smashed, rendering her a hulk in the way of other shipping in the harbor.

Hudgins told how the Villapera had been ordered to a new berth due to crowded conditions in the Wilmington harbor. A tug was pressed into service because the vessel had steam engines and considerable time would have been required for her to get up sufficient steam to move under her own power.

"After the ship was moved," said Hudgins, "and Coast Guardsmen boarded her to make sure she was snug in her new berth, it was found that she had been crippled. The captain of the Wilmington port, a Coast Guardsman, flashed this report to the Coast Guard commandant in Washington."

"Then the acting secretary of the treasury, with the approval of President Roosevelt, issued order to take over all German and Italian ships in American harbors."

Georgia June
Draftee Quota
Is 4,700 Men
Largest Call Yet Made; Rate May Be Stepped Up.
The largest draft quota for the state since selective service began, calling for 4,700 Georgians to be inducted into the Army during June, was received by state headquarters yesterday. Brigadier General Sion B. Hawkins, director, announced.
The record-breaking quota followed close instructions from national headquarters in Washington, asking immediate classification of all the 399,000 Georgians who have not yet received their questionnaires. Only about 30 per cent have been classified so far.
Some draft officials saw in the increased June quota an indication that the rate of putting men in the Army through selective service might be stepped up in the future.
The June call is for 2,700 white men and 2,000 Negroes, General Hawkins said. It will bring the total number of Georgia selectees in the Army to nearly 12,000, the state's quota for the first year of selective service.
General Hawkins urged local boards in the state to speed up their work of classification in view of the heavy demand. Quotas will be sent to the boards from state headquarters today and tomorrow, it was said.
General Hawkins also announced yesterday that Commander
Jesse Draper, prominent Atlanta
Naval Reserve officer and businessman, will be assigned to state headquarters as liaison officer for the Navy in procurement of men through selective service. The Navy is not yet getting men through selective service except ing them only for full-term enlistments, but it has been indicated some selectees may be put in the Navy later.
Student Patrolmen
Meet Tomorrow
A meeting of Atlanta schoolboy patrolmen will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at police headquarters to discuss plans for attending the annual national patrolmen convention in Washington next week. G. Neal Ellis, assistant police chief, announced yesterday.
The assistant chief said he was particularly interested in knowing how many boys and girls plan to make the trip so early by giving instructions about their tickets and chaperons. He announced a meeting of Negro patrolmen for 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The large truck was at Five

Bill Introduced To Raise
RFC Borrowing Power
WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—
Senator Brown, Democrat, Michigan, introduced today a bill to increase borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by $1,500,000,000 to meet national defense needs.
He said he offered it at the request of RFC officials.
The measure also would extend the life of two other government lending corporations, the Disaster Loan Corporation and Electric Home and Farm Authority, until June 30, 1947. Both would terminate under present law on June 30 next.

Ex-Convict Admits Guilt in Blast That Killed Brother and Sister

Former Inmate Says Explosion Was Intended for Director of Public Health in Scranton, Instead of His Children.

LOUISA, Ky., May 1.—(P)—A former Ohio convict told a Kentucky sheriff today that he had wired an automobile for the explosion which killed the young daughter and son of the Scranton (Pa.) director of public health last November 7.

"I haven't been able to sleep for three months," Sheriff Proctor Fyfe quoted Dwight O. Thorne, 32, the former convict.

Thorne had come to Louisa for treatment of a snakebite. The explosion, which Thorne said was intended for Dr. E. H. Rehborn, killed instead his son, William, 19, a Scranton University student, and daughter, Lois, 17.

County Attorney M. J. See, who announced the signed confession, said Thorne told the following story:

"I was sent up from Cadiz, Ohio, to the Ohio penitentiary for stealing $3,400 from a hatchery. There I met a man named Bancroft, who said he was from Canton, Ohio. After our parole the first of November, 1940, we went to Scranton about November 3.

"Bancroft told me he would give me $2,000 to kill Rehborn. He gave me $1,000 then and was to give me $1,000 afterwards, but I've never seen him since."

Thorne recounted that Bancroft, whose first name he did not know, had been employed by a coal company for which Rehborn was surgeon. He blamed Rehborn, Thorne said, for having him cut off from collecting compensation.

The explosion, of four sticks of dynamite, shattered the car, shook windows of the fashionable "Hill district" of Scranton and hurled the bodies of the brother and sister into the street.

Although Thorne said he did not know Bancroft's first name, he described him as being about five feet six inches tall, weighing 165 pounds, and said he was about 36 years old. Thorne also said he had a scar on his left cheek from his eye to his lip.

British Boost Troops in Iraq In Nazi's Path

Axis Pincers Movement Believed Sweeping Toward East.

LONDON, May 1.—(P)—New and strong forces of the British Imperial army stood guard tonight in Iraq, in the path of a vast Axis pincers which appears to have begun already a sweep aimed at engulfment of Suez, Egypt, and the rich oil fields of Asia Minor.

Authoritative sources disclosed that additional British forces had been landed at Basra, over the opposition of the new Iraq government and in the face of Iraq army concentrations which, they feared, are threatening the British air base at Habbaniyah, on the Euphrates.

Defenses Pierced.

This base is 60 miles west of Baghdad. Authoritative sources said they had heard reports that Nazi agents were "intriguing" recently in Iraq, and expressed the hope that the Iraq government will show plainly that such intrigues are not effective.

West of Suez, at the edge of Egypt's western desert, Axis armored columns had pierced the outer defenses of British-held Tobruk, and well-informed observers here were openly agitated lest the Axis scissors close before General Sir Archibald P. Wavell has a chance to reorganize and re-equip the British middle-eastern armies following their Balkan defeats.

The Nazi air force blasted at ships in Suda harbor on the island of Crete, authorized sources in Berlin said.

Crete Discussed.

The high command gave no intimation as to the direction of the next German thrust in the south-east, but Berlin newspapers significantly began discussing "the vulnerability of the island of Crete," barely 100 miles south of the Nazi army which is completing the conquest of Peloponnesus.

Crete, to which King George II and his government fled shortly before Hitler's troops entered Athens, also is only 200 miles from Africa—a short hop for transport planes carrying paratroopers or air infantry.

Observers say elimination of the British hold on Tobruk is essential to the Germans and Italians before they can renew in force their eastward thrust across north Africa. Once Tobruk had fallen only the British fleet and air force would be able to cut the Axis lines which stretch some 800 miles east of Tripoli.

Fleet Is Active.

The fleet already is at work, pounding anew at the Axis panzers at El Gazala, west of Tobruk. The additional contingents sent to Iraq, following the initial landings of April 17 and 18, presumably are there for these reasons:

1. To discourage the Germans from trying to send air and sea-borne troops to next-door Syria, protectorate of beaten France, and make Syria a base for a drive on Suez.

2. Stiffen Turkey's back against a Nazi march-through by land to the middle east.

3. Provide greater protection for the Mosul oil fields.

4. Restrain the French in Syria from letting the Nazis get a foothold there.

Iraq Balks.

Authoritative British sources acknowledged that the present Iraq authorities, who are in power as the result of a coup d'état, demurred against the new troop landings on the ground that the INSURANCE SPEAKER— J. Harry Wood, vice president of the ordinary agencies of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, who will speak to Atlanta Life Underwriters at 12 o'clock today in the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Wood To Address Underwriters Here

J. Harry Wood, vice president and manager of ordinary agencies of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, will speak to the Atlanta Life Underwriters at 12 o'clock today in the Atlanta Athletic Club.

He is in town today to attend a series of meetings and conferences commemorating the 15th anniversary of the founding of the Georgia agency of his company by Walter Powell, general agent.

A native of Arkansas, he has been connected with the John Hancock Company since his graduation from Harvard in 1926, except for three years as a consultant of the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau. For three years he has been manager of general agencies with office in Boston, Massachusetts.

RAF Is Active Despite Weather

LONDON, May 1.—(P)—German guns on the French coast hurled big explosive shells briefly across the misty strait into the Dover area again tonight as bad visibility apparently kept Nazi air activity to a minimum.

The shelling began shortly after 6 p. m. (noon, Atlanta time), in the same region where a seven-hour bombardment Tuesday led some Britons to believe an early invasion attempt might be contemplated.

Tonight the guns fell silent after two salvos, however. Despite stormy weather, particularly over the continent, the British air ministry reported that strong RAF bomber forces conducted overnight attacks on the German naval base at Kiel, on Hamburg's industrial center, on the port of Emden, and on targets in the Berlin area. One British plane failed to return from the night missions and another was lost in daylight attacks Wednesday on shipping off the Dutch coast and on an island radio station off Norway.

No Sentiment for Peace In England, Arnold Says

NEW YORK, May 1.—(P)—Brigadier General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Corps and deputy chief of staff, declared "there is no sentiment for peace among the English people," on his return from Europe today on the Yankee Clipper.

The general, who left New York by Clipper April 10, said his visit to Britain had given him "a very broad view of England's war machine, and of the steps taken to build up that war machine."

He declined to discuss military factors of his visit, during which he had an audience with King George, whom he found "a very charming and delightful gentleman," and talks with Prime Minister Churchill.

men previously landed had not yet passed through the country. The Iraqis, it was stated, had concurred in opening the lines of communication for the previously landed force, but balked when told that more troops were about to arrive to "complete the strength of the Imperial forces."

On their part the British insisted firmly that the Iraq-British treaty entitles Britain to maintain as many troops in Iraq as she considers necessary to keep Empire communication lines open.

No Incident. The treaty provides that Iraq must furnish Britain all assistance in her power to this end, including the use of railways, rivers, ports and aerodromes in the event of war or the danger of war.

At the same time the British demanded the removal of the Iraq army concentrations from the vicinity of Habbaniyah. In the interim, the new British troops were disembarked at Basra without incident.

MUSIC TO SOOTHE.

On the theory, perhaps, that music hath charms to soothe the egotism, Conductor Serge Koussevitzky of the Boston Symphony Orchestra has hired Robert Richardson, a cornet-playing farmer, as superintendent of his Lenox estate.

'Little' Plants Offer Defense Job Services

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(P)—The National Association of Manufacturers advised the government today that 18,000 "small and medium-sized" industrial plants were ready and willing to assume defense work.

President Walter D. Fuller delivered the report to William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, and said offers to make plants available for defense work were still being received.

He said that, "despite our hatred for war," the "patriotic manufacturers" conducted the survey, "aimed to gear our industrial nation to an all-out production of defense weapons."

A total of 14,077 plants were registered in a "preparedness-through-production" survey by the association, and 3,925 plants were surveyed by other organizations. Of those registered, 3,994 said they already were doing defense work;

2,915 reported existence of unused floor space; and 4,881 expressed a willingness to install equipment for defense production.

A total of 10,719 plants reported as to shifts of workmen now used, and 72 per cent said they used only one.

Spring Menu Helps

Here are suggestions for a week's menus. These menus take into account seasonal fruits and vegetables, and are designed to provide meals that are well balanced and varied. The cost of these meals will be very moderate, but the cost can be reduced further, if necessary, by substituting cheaper cuts of meat for those mentioned. Other substitutions, too, can be made, provided the food substituted is of the same kind; starch for a starch, a green vegetable for a green one, and so on. The citrus fruits are interchangeable, and when they are not obtainable, tomato juice, fresh or canned, serves almost equally well from a nutrition standpoint. Canned and frozen vegetables have as much value as the fresh ones. Allowance should be made for a quart of milk a day for children; a pint for adults; this includes the milk used in souffles, puddings, charlottes, in cream sauces, over cereals and in the form of cheese. These menus make liberal use of milk and cheese. The milk for cooking can be canned, if desired. Following are recipes for dishes mentioned in menus:

Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream

Pick over, hull, wash and mash 2 cups ripe strawberries, then mix them with 1-2 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Stir to mix and let stand for 30 minutes to dissolve the sugar. Mix 1-2 cup water with 1-4 cup sugar and boil for five minutes, cool and add to the berries. Then fold in 2 well-beaten egg whites and 1-2 cups cream whipped until stiff. Mix thoroughly and then pour into the freezing pan of the refrigerator. Freeze for about an hour or until the mixture is mushy, then scrape out into a bowl, mash and beat with a fork until creamy, return to the pan and finish freezing. Or pour into an ice-freezer and freeze with a mixture of one part ice cream salt to 4 parts cracked ice. Makes 1 quart.

Cheese Ring With Vegetable Salad

Soften 1-2 tablespoons plain gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water, then dissolve in 1-2 cup hot milk. Grate and mash 1-2 pound well flavored American cheese, add the hot milk gradually to it and stir over a very low heat until the mixture is smooth. Remove from the fire and cool. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1-2 teaspoon paprika. When cold fold in 1 cup whipped cream or evaporated milk and pour into a ring mold that has been rinsed with cold water. Set in a cold place to chill and stiffen. When firm turn out on a bed of shredded lettuce, garnish with slices of sliced stuffed olives and fill the center with mixed vegetable salad, seasoned with French dressing. Serve with mayonnaise.

Potato Pancakes

Mix 2 cups grated raw potatoes with 1 cup well-beaten egg, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon fine, dry bread crumbs, pepper to season and 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Drop from a tablespoon onto a hot, greased griddle.

Apricot Fig Jam

Lemon Sponge Pudding

Cream together 1-4 cup butter and 1 cup sugar and when well blended add the grated rind of 1 large lemon and 1-3 cup lemon juice, and the well-beaten yolks of two eggs. Mix well, then stir in two tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk and the stiffly beaten whites of the 2 eggs. Pour into a buttered baking dish lined with lady fingers or very thin slices of sponge cake. Bake in a moderate oven—325-350 degrees—for about 45 minutes or until the pudding is set like a custard. Remove from the oven and serve slightly warm or very cold.

Strawberry shortcake has been aptly called "the queen of desserts."

Shortcake: Cake or Biscuit

Every strawberry season the discussion is renewed: "Shall strawberry shortcake be made with short biscuit crusts or cake foundation?" You may take your choice; It's a wonderful dessert either way. Here are both methods:

Strawberry Shortcake
Biscuit Dough.
3 cups sifted cake flour (or 2 1/2 cups plain flour)
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup shortening
3-4 cup milk
2 quarts strawberries, washed and hulled

Sift flour once, measure, sift again with baking powder and salt. Cut in shortening; add flour all at once and stir carefully until all flour is dampened. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms soft dough. Turn out immediately on lightly floured board and knead a few seconds. Divide dough in halves. Press each half out evenly in slightly greased layer cake pans, and make in two layers. Reserving some whole berries for garnish, slice remaining berries, and sweeten to taste. Split layers of shortcake in half, spread with softened butter, and spread berries between. Top with whole berries.

Budget Cake.

2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
3-4 cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, and sift again with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening with sugar

Banana Strawberry Cream Pie
One-half cup sugar, one and one-half cups strawberries, one-half package strawberry flavored gelatin, one-half cup hot water, three-fourths cup whipping cream, four ripe bananas, one baked 9-inch pie shell.
Add sugar to strawberries. Dissolve gelatin in hot water and pour over berries. Chill. Whip the cream until stiff. Fold four tablespoons thickened gelatin into cream. Cover bottom of pie shell with whipped cream mixture. Slice bananas and fold into strawberry gelatin mixture. Pile over whipped cream mixture. Chill.

Ideas From Cook's Notebook

Mix 1-2 cup soft brown sugar, with 1 teaspoon dry mustard and 1-2 cup juice from spiced peaches. Spread this over a thick slice of ham, cover and bake for 20 to 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

Now that fresh rhubarb is in season, try this: Cut 1 pound young pink rhubarb in inch pieces without skinning it. Put a thick layer in a baking dish and sprinkle with 1-3 cup sugar then with 1-2 cup water over all, cover and bake in a moderate oven for about 40 minutes or until the rhubarb is soft and the raisins plump and tender. Serve cold with or without cream as a breakfast fruit or a dessert.

Chop 1 cucumber fine, mix with 1-2 teaspoon chopped onion, 1-2 teaspoon salt, a little chopped parsley and 1 tablespoon vinegar. Let drain through a fine colander or strainer for half an hour. Mix the remaining pulp with 1-2 cup of cream beaten stiff and serve as a dressing for fish salad, stuffed eggs or cold tongue.

Add 1 cup thick, strained applesauce to the rhubarb used in making a rhubarb pie and note the wonderful flavor.

Boiled Raisin Cake

Boil together, for 5 minutes, 2 cups of granulated sugar and 2 cups boiling water, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 pound raisins. When cold, add 1 teaspoon soda. Sift together 3 cups of cake flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon each of nutmeg and cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon cloves. Add to the first mixture after it has become cold. Let the first mixture stand overnight, if you wish. In this case, add soda in the morning. Then add 1 cup walnut meats, 1-3 pound sliced citron. Bake in a 300 to 325 degree oven. The time will be about an hour.

Onions and ripe olives are good flavor teammates. Use them to introduce new flavor in broiled or sautéed steaks, liver or hamburger patties. Slice onions, and sauté in the required amount of fat until slightly brown. Season with salt to taste. Add ripe olives sliced from the pits of inexpensive-sized fruit, or ready-prepared form of chopped or sliced ripe olives. Proportions are suited to personal taste. Cook and stir both together until olives are heated through. Serve over prepared steaks of any type, tender brown servings of beef or calves liver, hamburger or ground steak patties.

Piquant French dressings make good use of chopped or sliced ripe olives to give flavor to spring and summer vegetable salad combinations.

Fluffy Tarragon Dressing.

1-2 teaspoons tarragon vinegar.
4 tablespoons powdered sugar.
Whip the cream. Fold in vinegar and sugar.

Kaltenborn Will Give Talk Here Tonight

Commentator To Discuss World Events at Auditorium.

H. V. Kaltenborn, radio news commentator, will arrive in Atlanta this afternoon to lecture on current world events at 8 o'clock tonight at the municipal auditorium, for the benefit of the Atlanta Lions Club milk fund.

The precise-spoken analyst, whose blunt comments on the foreign situation caused him to be barred from Germany long before the outbreak of the present war, will conduct his talk in his usual informal radio style.

The latter part of his lecture will be turned into an open forum discussion, in which he will answer questions directed by the audience.

Upon his arrival at 4:15 o'clock today, he will be met at Brookwood station by a delegation from the Lions Club and escorted to his downtown hotel quarters.

The program at the auditorium will open at 7:30 o'clock with a 15-minute organ recital by Dr. Charles Sheldon, followed by audience participation in a number of patriotic songs led by John Hoffman, director of music at the University of Georgia Evening school.

Ollie Reeves, chairman of the Lions Club Kaltenborn committee, will act as master of ceremonies. Lion President Bob Hale will introduce Mayor Roy LeCraw, who will in turn introduce Mr. Kaltenborn.

Downtown ticket sales for the lecture are being handled by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Lions Club at Muse's, Davison's, Rich's and Regenstein's. Both reserved and general admission seats are available. Entire proceeds from the lecture will be used to furnish milk for Atlanta's underprivileged children.

A bright sun shone as the trim ship slid down the ways at noon before a group of guests, including a congressional delegation and their wives, and a throng of shipyard workers.

More Housing Money Is Sought by President

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt today sent to congress a request for $15,000,000 additional for defense housing, to provide temporary shelter for workers in national defense areas where serious shortages exist.

Also requested were an additional $143,000 for the legislative establishment, $811,000 for the State Department, and $250,000 for the Commodity Credit Corporation and Agriculture Department.

FROST AT BLUE RIDGE. BLUE RIDGE, Ga., May 1.—Unusual temperatures prevailing here Tuesday and Wednesday brought a light frost both mornings. However, farmers have reported little damage to general crops, but tender vegetables were slightly nipped.

TO SPEAK HERE—H. V. Kaltenborn, radio news commentator, will speak at 8 o'clock tonight at the municipal auditorium on the current world crisis.

Faster Delivery Noted Of 19 Defense Supplies

NEW YORK, May 1.—(P)—The magazine Mill Supplies reported today a "noticeable improvement" during April in deliveries from manufacturers to distributors of 19 key national defense supplies.

Faster shipments are being made, it found, in coated abrasives, grinding wheels, hacksaw blades, electric and hand hoists and welding equipment.

Said the magazine: "Extra working shifts, expanded plant facilities, elimination of special items and simplification of product lines are all contributing to the better performance of manufacturers. And the result should be reassuring to distributors."

Fort Benning Is Captured... by Helen Parrish

 By CHARLES GILMORE.
 The United States Army can defend itself against anything except the charms of Miss Helen Parrish. She is the Columbus, Ga., girl who is cautiously described by some motion picture critics as "the most sensational starlet of the century."

This past week she returned to the old home town and captured without opposition the fervid admiration of the military units stationed at Fort Benning. Although she was officially adopted as the "sponsor" of the 20th Engineers, Miss Parrish did not leave the post until she had collected pins from the 22nd Infantry, the 29th Infantry and the Infantry School. On her way to New York yesterday, she stopped long enough in Atlanta to review briefly her film career, and state emphatically that Walter Winchell has made a profound error in linking her name romantically with that of Rudy Valle.

Of course, she just completed a picture with the New England crooner, entitled "Too Many Blondes." But Miss Parrish insists that her association with Rudy has been limited to the silver screen, and adds that she has never even had a date with the man.

When asked if she thought Gossip Columnist Winchell had made his first mistake in predicting her marriage to Mr. Valle, Miss Parrish capably answered: "I don't know if it's his first mistake, but it really is a mistake."

Friendly and very polite, Miss Parrish has lost most of her Georgia accent, but has retained all of the feminine charms usually associated with this state.

As most fans will remember, she was one of the "Three Smart Girls," which featured Deanna Durbin, and so well did she play her role in that film that Miss Durbin invited her to be a bridesmaid in her recent wedding. More recently Miss Parrish played with Kay Kyser, and his musical colleagues, in "You'll Find Out."

For the second time in her life, she is going to New York City. The first time was a year ago when she made a personal appearance tour there and "saw absolutely nothing of the town." This trip, Miss Parrish says, she is going to see the "town."

On the lapel of her gray traveling suit she wore an Alpha Tau Omega fraternity pin. She denied the customary connotations of such a pin by pointing out that recently a group of starlets were assigned as fraternity sponsors. She drew A. T. O. "I like the Army better, though," she said, a statement which is certain to cause a little trouble in some circles.

The natural conclusion to this story would be a few statistics on the increase in strength during the past few days of the 20th Engineers. Fourth Corps area headquarters, however, refuses to discuss enlistment numbers.

Sulfanilamide Prevents Rheumatic Fever Return
 PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—(P)—Sulfanilamide, wonder-working curative drug, is starting in a new role—preventing recurrences of rheumatic fever.

The drug has no value in treating acute stages of the disease but daily doses prevent flare-ups after the "flames" subside, the Philadelphia Heart Association heard yesterday.

Dr. Alvin F. Coburn, assistant professor of medicine at Columbia University, told of giving sul-fanilamide to 180 children convalescing from the dreaded disease which injures young hearts. Only one had a recurrence during three years, he said, while without the treatment, 30 to 60 of the children probably would have been stricken again.

Fire Loss Heavy At 431 Peachtree

Fire in the McDonough and Merriman Company, rear of 431 Peachtree street, about 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, did considerable damage to the front of the building and caused large stock loss, firemen reported.

Police erroneously reported Wednesday night, and The Constitution printed yesterday morning that this fire was at the Specialty Distributing Company, 425 Peachtree street. But this was not the case and the Specialty Distributing Company was not involved in the fire at all.

In the basement of the building at the rear of 431 Peachtree was the Clow Gasteam Heating Company, where the water damage was considerable, police said.

Hair Solution Case Extended Until May 21

U. S. Takes Libel Action After Death of Griffin Woman.

District Judge E. Marvin Underwood yesterday signed an order giving an extension of time—until May 21—for counsel for manufacturers of the "Willatt Method of Heatless Permanent Waving" to file further defense claims in the libel action brought by the government.

United States marshals last month seized units of the preparation which allegedly was applied to the head of Mrs. Agnes Scott Searcy, of Griffin, in an Atlanta beauty parlor shortly before her death last March 19. J. Ellis Mundy, assistant United States attorney, is handling the case for the government.

Units of the preparation were seized after tests were made in Washington by the Federal Food and Drug Administration which disclosed the preparation contained "a poisonous and deleterious substance, to wit: ammonium hydrogen sulfide."

The return day on the libel action originally was set for last Monday, but was checked over until yesterday. F. M. Bird is counsel for makers of the preparation.

STAR IN PLAY—Leading roles in the Russell High school senior class play Tuesday night will be taken by George Sparks II and Eva Mae Goen. The play is "Growing Pains," a farce on the adolescent age.

Play To Be Given By Russell Class

"Growing Pains," a play relating to adolescence, will be presented by the senior class of Russell High school at 8 o'clock Tuesday in the East Point auditorium.

Written by Auranian Rouvenal the comedy plays the tragedies of growing youth against the humor. Although largely a farce it portrays youth's perplexity and its troubles during the awkward age.

In the cast are: George Sparks II, Eva Mae Goen, Dotsey Smith, Fred Wilson, Edna Reynolds, La-Maria Nordan, Elizabeth Leake, Jeanne Richardson, Tommy Wilson, Ray Brock, Virlyn Johnson, Phillip Warren, William Brown, Mary Ellen Tull, Ammarie Carter, Elizabeth Walker, Howard Kenyon and Nell Wyatt.

Judge Camp Orders

Halt in Whisky Sales

DUBLIN, Ga., May 1.—Superior Court Judge R. Earl Camp late today directed orders against eight places of business here and in Laurens county restraining the sale of whisky, following hearings on petitions brought by Solicitor General J. Eugene Cook seeking to close them as public nuisances.

A petition against one other place was dismissed, and Solicitor Cook announced that three petitions in which the evidence was similar would not be pressed.

Solicitor Cook initiated the proceedings, directed at 16 places in all, following raids staged by state revenue agents several weeks ago.

Russia Ready For Any 'Trick' Of Her Enemies

Motorized Troops Parade in Red Square On May Day.

MOSCOW, May 1.—(AP)—Masses of truck-borne infantry and new motorized artillery were star attractions today in Soviet Russia's traditional May Day parade in Red square and Defense Commissar S. K. Timoshenko told spectators that the Red army was mobilized against "accidents" and "the tricks of our foreign enemies."

There were fewer foot soldiers than before and less of the usual field artillery. Two mortars mounted on trucks were among the new machines which rumbled past the reviewing stand at the base of Lenin's tomb.

Youths Parade.

Also prominent were youths of 14 to 17 in the silver-buttoned black uniforms of the State Labor Reserve which was created last November.

An aerial procession of 300 warplanes concluded the show, roaring through the clear blue skies while tanks clanked along below.

Among the diplomats who watched was the German ambassador, Count Friedrich Werner von der Schulenburg, who has just returned from a consultation with Adolf Hitler.

Situation Tense.

Timoshenko, in the keynote speech opening the celebration and in a special army order of the day, expressed hope for the end of war "the sooner the better," but warned:

"The party, the Soviet government and our entire people realize clearly that our country is in a capitalist encirclement, that the international situation is very tense and pregnant with all kinds of surprises."

"Therefore, the entire Soviet people and the Red army and navy must be in a state of fighting preparedness."

Civilians March.

Timoshenko said the April 13 neutrality pact with Japan was evidence that the Soviet Union "keeps out of war and resists its extension," but warned that Russia was ready "to offer an annihilating rebuff to any encroachment by imperialists."

After the military display, more than 1,000,000 civilians marched through the square with banners and large pictures of Soviet leaders.

The program ended tonight with dancing, band concerts and outdoor movies in streets hung with red banners.

Elsewhere throughout the Soviet Union there were parades and celebrations similar to that in Moscow, although on a smaller scale.

Rome Livestock Sales May Be Stepped Up

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
ROME, Ga., May 1.—The Coosa Valley Livestock Producers' Association, sponsors of the monthly livestock sale here, announced today that sales may be held twice monthly before the end of the summer.

Henry W. Pyne, Chamber of Commerce secretary, who also serves as association secretary, announced that the two sales a month schedule would definitely be inaugurated in August and maybe before.

Sales at the April auction held Tuesday totaled $6,192 through the ring and approximately $800 in private transactions. This made a total of more than $21,000 worth of livestock sold at the local barn within the past two weeks.

The annual fat cattle show, held April 22, brought in approximately $14,000.

Macon Residential Rents To Be Probed

MACON, Ga., May 1.—(AP)—A survey of residential rents in Macon, which officials here say have skyrocketed since the beginning of defense projects last year, will be conducted by the United States Department of Labor and Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The bureau, in making the announcement, said investigators will come to Macon within a few days to study the local situation. The investigation will cover the period from the fall of 1939 to the present.

Everytime he raids the cookie jar...

He gets B-vitamins he needs for proper growth—if those cookies were made with Enriched Pillsbury's Best Flour!

Baked foods made with ENRICHED PILLSBURY'S BEST FLOUR give your family iron and precious B-vitamins which they need every day for health and well-being. Just what is being added to Pillsbury's Best—and why? First, Vitamin B₁ (thiamin)—to help the body make proper use of energy foods (carbohydrates). This is essential to proper growth nerves, and ability to thrive on hard physical work. Second, iron—to help build red blood. Third, Vitamin P-P—another member of the Vitamin B complex, which also overcomes certain deficiencies in the diet.

At last—these vitamins are within the means of every family! For flour—ever the finest flour—is one of the least expensive foods known to man!

Remember—Pillsbury's Best is still the same good-baking flour after it has been enriched—but inferior flour, even if enriched, is still inferior flour. The same strict milling standards which make Pillsbury's Best a fine "baking" flour also make it a uniformly enriched flour!

Record Peach Crop Expected This Season

State Survey Encouraging; 'Oak Rust' Found in Warm Springs.

A record crop of peaches is anticipated in Georgia this year on the basis of a survey just completed by the state department of entomology.

State Entomologist J. H. Girardeau said yesterday representatives of his office had just completed a tour of the state and found trees to be unusually free of pests and diseases.

Barring any unexpected developments, Girardeau predicted this year's harvest would be among the largest in the history of the state.

At the same time he said his department had investigated reports that a disease was attacking pine trees at the Warm Springs Foundation and found the disease to be "oak rust."

This abnormal fungus growth which aroused residents of the Warm Springs area is quite general over the state but is not dangerous from an economic point of view, Girardeau said.

He explained that it is sometimes confused with "white pine blister," which is particularly injurious to timber in some sections of the state. He said the "oak rust" ordinarily attacks only oak trees but occasionally switches to pines.

TECH "HONORS DAY" WINNERS—These three Atlanta youths are among Georgia Tech students who will receive awards in the Honors Day program today. Left to right, John Moore Walker, son of Rev. John M. Walker, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, winner of the Eta Kappa Nu award for work in electrical engineering; J. Starke Hamilton Jr., son of Mrs. J. S. Hamilton, 1429 Allegheny street, winner of an award for excellence in architectural studies; and Bruce Gerrard, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Gerrard, 126 Montgomery Ferry drive, winner of the Phi Eta Sigma freshman scholastic cup.

'Camp Month' Is Proposed For Baptists

Board Suggests Campaign To Finance Military Program.

The Southern Baptist Home Mission Board in its monthly meeting here yesterday voted to request the Southern Baptist convention in session week after next in Birmingham to designate a camp month, during which time an appeal will be made to churches throughout the south to support the new work the board is undertaking in the military training camps.

Baptist work in these training camps has been committed to the local agency with Dr. Noble Y. Beall, of Atlanta, as field secretary.

In commenting to the board on the training camp work, Dr. Beall said that there are now 75 major Army camps in the south with 750,000 soldiers in training. In addition, he said, there are 500 CCC camps with approximately 500,000 boys.

The first quarter's receipts of the year, according to Dr. S. B. Lawrence's treasurer's report, showed an increase, the total of $255,798.70 being $23,708.54 more than received in the same four months last year.

Offerings in April, he stated, included an amount of $88,127.72 from the Annie Armstrong offering of Woman's Missionary Union to home missions. This was $13,215.86 more than was received in April of last year through the same source. The total receipts for April were $173,302.48, an increase of $21,837.73.

Dr. Lawrence stated that more than $65,000 had been allocated this year for payment of the board's debts. At this rate, he said, the board would pay over $200,000 on debts during the year.

Scientists Create Starlight In Laboratory Test-Tube

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Creation of starlight in a laboratory test-tube was announced today before the American Physical Society by two University of California scientists.

Drs. F. A. Jenkins and S. Mrowzowski reported they had achieved the double radiation of atoms of oxygen and nitrogen which apparently occurs normally only in stars millions of light years out in space.

Plan To Permit 300 Students Prepayment of To Be Honored Taxes Indorsed Today at Tech Compulsory Purchasing of Defense Securities Is Also Recommended.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Installment prepayment of taxes, indorsed in principle by the treasury, and compulsory purchasing of defense securities were recommended to congress by a group of about 170 economists today as speedy revenue raisers and safeguards against currency inflation.

The economists' views were presented to the house ways and means committee by two spokesmen a short time after Secretary Morgenthau had disclosed that his tax experts were at work on a plan which would, in effect, enable taxpayers to pay the forthcoming higher taxes on an advance installment basis and thus avoid the necessity for borrowing at tax time.

Drs. Albert G. Hart, of Iowa State College, and S. E. Harris, of Harvard University, who presented the economists' views, made a somewhat similar proposal. In addition they suggested that a substantial part of the public's savings should be diverted into defense securities, otherwise, they said inflation would almost certainly develop as a result of the tremendous defense spending.

Hart explained that because so much of the nation's industry would be at work on defense orders, it would not be able to turn out even the normal amount of consumer goods while, at the same time, the defense program would be greatly increasing the consumers' buying power.

"Inflation comes," Hart said, "when spending outruns production." As one method of controlling the situation, Hart suggested a flexible income tax system, geared to prompt payment by having employers collect the levies just as social security taxes now are collected. He added: "The rate at which income is taxed should be adjusted upward whenever a selected index of retail prices is rising at more than a very moderate rate (we suggest one-half of one per cent monthly) and downward whenever prices stabilize."

Honors Day Exercises Include Military Pageant, Dance.

Honors Day exercises in which approximately 300 students of Georgia Tech will receive recognition for high scholastic attainments will be held at Georgia Tech today, beginning with a speech at 10:30 o'clock this morning by Goodrich C. White, vice president of Emory University.

The day's program will also include an elaborate military pageant on Grant field, beginning at 7:30 o'clock tonight, followed by a military ball in the auditorium-gymnasium from 10 until 2 o'clock.

50 Awards.
Winners of nearly 50 cups, medals and other awards and high ranking students in each class will be honored in the morning exercises, at which Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the college, will preside.

Battery "I," Coast Artillery, commanded by Cadet Captain Craig C. Davis, of Atlanta, will receive a silver cup in the military exercises tonight, for winning the competitive drill for all Army companies for 1941. Company A, Navy, commanded by Cadet Lieutenant Robert I. Gibbs Jr., of Atlanta, will be awarded a cup for being the best drilled Navy company. Individual awards will be given to 34 cadets.

Three medals will be awarded tonight in an individual competitive drill, in which one man from each platoon will take part.

The presentation of awards in the morning and the military pageant are both open to the public. Visitors to the military program at Grant field will be seated in the west stands, it was announced.

Injunction Order Signed by Judge

A temporary injunction forbidding strike sympathizers from picketing merchants who deal through the Mason & Dixon Freight Lines was signed yesterday by Judge A. L. Etheridge, and a hearing on the order will be held tomorrow.

The injunction followed a union announcement Thursday in which strikers, who have been picketing the freight line since March, threatened to extend their activities to include the city's leading stores.

According to the petition for injunction, the lines claim that picketed department stores would be forced to turn their business over to other carriers because thousands of potential customers who are members of organized labor would not be able to cross the picket lines to buy.

Marietta Highway Paving Starts Soon

State highway officials announced yesterday that paving of the last lap of the new Atlanta-Marietta highway is scheduled to begin next week.

The Highway Department has received notice that Contractor M. J. Carroll, of Ocala, Fla., has made bond for the job and plans to start laying concrete immediately. Contract for paving the final five miles was approved by the federal government several months ago, but was held up by the State Highway Board until recently.

Senate Okays Vermont Claim in War of 1812

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—A trifle tardily, the senate today approved a $92,868 claim by Vermont for funds that state advanced to finance the War of 1812. The delay arose from the fact that certain records were lost in a fire in 1857. The house must still act on the claim.

Vienna Ruled Out as Depot Site... Report

George's Home Town Is Said To Lack Ample Facilities.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—An informed source said today the effort by Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, to get a $14,000,000 army air depot for his home town had failed.

The informant said the site between Vienna, the senator's home, and Cordele, had been ruled out by the War Department.

That leaves Atlanta, Columbus, Macon, and perhaps other locations, in the running. Senator George's aid for the Cordele-Vienna site was enlisted several weeks ago by a delegation from the two towns. He stated the case of these communities to Secretary Stimson, President Roosevelt and high Army officers.

A study of the site was ordered. However, it was reported this location was eliminated because some others offered more adequate housing facilities, a better labor reservoir and readily available utilities.

The War Department has announced only that the air depot would be built somewhere in the southeast.

Well-groomed legs, such as those of Juanita Stark, Warner Brothers' star, are a necessity for summer beauty. Play suits and swim suits certainly show them off to advantage. Miss Stark's play suit is made of white sharkskin with polka dot sleeves and back. The shorts button on to the shirt.

Beautiful Legs in Summertime Demand Careful Grooming

By Winifred Ware.

Warm weather, play clothes, swim suits, play shoes and socks—all focus attention on legs. And it takes smooth, well-cared-for legs to stand so much spotlighting.

One of the first steps toward well-groomed legs is to remove the dark, unattractive hair from them. Few of us are blessed with downy hair on our legs like that on our arms. When the growth is long or dark the best thing to do is to remove it.

How to remove it is, of course, the problem. There's the razor that too many people use, and if that's your method, I hope you'll keep on reading this article. Shaving the hair makes it stiffer. Because you slice off the end of the hair it grows back with a square end, stubbly. Besides you have to repeat the shaving process nearly every day.

My suggestion is to use a depilatory, and as I write that I see you turn up your nose, literally. Old style depilatories had such bad, strong odors that everyone else had to leave the house when you used them. But, thank goodness, the cream depilatories of today bear little resemblance to those old ones.

The one I have in mind is a white cream which looks like fine vanishing cream—not grainy and claylike as the others were. The smell is as pleasant as a vanishing cream, too, and they haven't just covered the old smell up. . . . you couldn't do that. It's a faint, clean smell.

It's pleasant and simple to use, for it's a matter of spreading the cream on, letting it dry and then rinsing it off with clear water. Hairs wash away with it, leaving the legs perfectly smooth. It will be some time before they will begin to come back, and when they do, the growth will be soft and fine, like new hair.

I can tell you about this depilatory, what it is, how much it costs and where you can get it. Just call me at Walnut 6565 or write me in care of The Atlanta Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Another thing that might help the situation is to talk it over with your brother and sister and ask them to back you up, and then have a family gathering and present your case. If your father isn't a very strange and odd man, I think he will weaken if the whole family enter a plea.

Enlisting Mother's Sympathy Is Good Way to Influence Dad

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I am the "baby of the family" and it's not any fun. I am nearly 18 years old, but my father refuses to recognize the fact. My sister started going to dances when she was 15 and my brother goes all the time, but my father will not let me go. I always have to tell my friends, "Dad won't let me."

I went to dances at college and dad knew it and didn't object, but now that I am home he refuses to let me go. We only have square dances here. Some of the crowd drinks, others don't. My sister and brother always behave, and dad and mother used to go themselves. I am not allowed to go. I have always behaved well in a crowd or at parties so that it is not the reason. I hope you can solve my problem.

PUZZLED.

Dear Puzzled:

It certainly seems strange that your dad should take such an attitude toward your going to dances. It seems to me that the best thing for you to do would be to discuss the matter with him. After all, if you are 18, you are of age and have some rights, and unless your father has some very concrete or definite reason why you should not go to dances, you have a good talking point. Just talk to him with sense, don't get mad and demanding. Had you considered talking to your mother and asking her advice on the subject? Mothers always understand and they have an uncanny way of making fathers see the way they want them to.

Another thing that might help the situation is to talk it over with your brother and sister and ask them to back you up, and then have a family gathering and present your case. If your father isn't a very strange and odd man, I think he will weaken if the whole family enter a plea.

I visited some friends four months ago and I met a boy I love very much. He tells me he loves me. We live a distance apart, but he has never been to see me. He writes and keeps saying he does not go with anyone else, and I think it is true. He wants me to visit my friends again so we can be together. I enjoy being with him more than with anyone I have ever met. Do you think he really loves me? If he does, why doesn't he ever come to see me?

JENNIE.

Dear Jennie:

I think if he really loved you and had any serious intentions, he would come to see you—at least during the weekends. Living a distance apart, however, has to be considered, and perhaps he cannot come, but he should make an attempt anyway. There is no way for you to tell if he loves you, except by time and his attendant attentions. I think I would wait about two months before I visited the friends again in order to see him. Six months will have passed by then and that is a good testing period. Why don't you tell him that you are beginning to doubt his love, because he makes no attempt to see you, and that you hesitate coming to his home town again? His answer will at least give you some insight into his feelings and his attitude.

Dear Dixie:

My romance with this boy has only been by correspondence. In the two years we have been in love he has worked in three different places, and we wrote to each other every week. He works closer now and comes to see me every month. The last time he came we quarreled about a girl. The reason was because when he came to see me he was using her car. When he left he wrote me and told me he was sorry about the car and that he was not going with the girl any more. He said the only reason he went with her was because she came after him. He also said he could never be happy if anything ever came between us. Three weeks ago he wrote that he was coming for me and I answered his letter. I have not seen nor heard of him since. Should I write and ask him what's wrong or wait for him to write?

A TRUE FRIEND.

Dear True Friend:

It is your young man's move now, so do not write him. Whether he received your letter or not, if he intended coming for you he would come or would let you know what had happened. Perhaps he could not resist the other girl and her car and is just stalling about coming for you. He certainly is a two-timer to borrow one girl's car to go calling on the other, but if the other girl was foolish enough to let him have it, he should not be blamed too much. And another thing, had he proposed marriage when he told you he was coming for you? Perhaps you had not thought of that. You have no strings tied to him, so there is nothing you can do. He will come if he wants to, so don't write to find out why, or when.

'Oomph' Girl Defeats Studio But Won't Give Details

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, April 30.—Ann Sheridan looks well and rested—on the "Navy Blues" set at Warner's.

She is back to work in a brassiere and brief skirt after an eight-month interval during which she fought her bosses for more pay, less pictures. Contrary to the current conviction, Ann says she won the fight. "I got everything I asked for," she says. "But I promised I wouldn't give out the details." I am told from another source that Ann has been promised a maximum of four pictures a year and that if she is a good girl in this film her salary will be raised. Meanwhile, she is still getting the $600 weekly stipend.

Martha Raye, also in a brassiere and grass skirt, is making faces at Ann and breaking-up everyone on the set. "What's going to happen when Oakie and Haley get here?" Ann wonders. It should be funny. Miss Raye has lost weight and is very happy.

She becomes a bride for the third time on May 20.

Errol Flynn tells me he is not going to be a conventional father (the Flynn heir or heiress is expected at the end of May.) "I mean," Errol explains, "I'm not going to do any of that pacing up and down which fathers are supposed to indulge in. I'll be forbidden it." We are between "Lili" on the "Dive Bombers" set. "Lili," continues Errol, "is hoping the baby will settle me down and keep me at home more."

"Will it?" asks this reporter. Errol's answer is a grin.

A distinguished visitor to the set is Archduke Otto, the pretender to the non-existent Austria-Hungary throne. He poses for his picture with Director Michael Curtiz, an ex-conquerman of his.

"I don't think he remembers," Curtiz tells me, "but I was the strong man in a circus in Hungary when he was a small boy. And when I was a news photographer, I took his picture seated on his mother's lap. I guess I'd better not remind him of those days."

The Flynn film, in which Fred MacMurray is co-starred, is currently minus all women. But that will be changed. The studio wants a love angle. In my opinion, this is a mistake. Whenever a love story is included in a purely masculine film, the sole result is to slow up the action while the hero and the girl indulge in nonsense of this sort—"You must choose between me and your plane." He usually chooses the plane, leaving the little girl to cry her eyes out and marry the next man on the bill.

Keeping Teeth Clean, Alone, Will Not Keep Away Cavities

By Dr. William Brady.

Some of my vagaries are at least understandable, says a dentist, who has apparently seen nothing in this column of which he can approve, but he can't follow the weird course of the mental processes whereby I arrive at the conclusion that the dentists themselves are to blame for neglect of the teeth by the middle and well-to-do classes. The dentist fears I am growing senile.

A dental hygienist (young woman trained in a special school for the skilled work of assisting a dentist) chides me more severely for alluding to the excellent teeth of the people of Tristan de Cunha who never use a toothbrush or dentifrice. She fears most of my readers will assume that the Cunhans have excellent teeth because they don't use toothbrush or dentifrice.

Both letters are typical—the young woman frankly argues her point and does it well, acknowledging that my teachings if not I myself merit some consideration. The dentist, on the other hand, intent upon establishing my incompetence to have an opinion on the question, devotes his energy to diagnosing my senile dementia, and forgets to give any evidence, observations or facts, if he has any, to confute my teaching. In the course of several years I have collected a pile of letters nine inches high from dentists who are "doctors" in name only, and nearly half of them are just like that.

If I may be permitted to state the facts on which my teaching is based, they are:

1. Cavity begins as a scarcely noticeable fissure in the enamel.

2. It is impossible to keep this fissure clean by brushing the teeth. But the dentist can polish it out so that the natural cleaning action of mastication and the saliva will keep the teeth clean.

3. Dentists usually either approve or at best do not audibly deny the commercial slogan that a "clean tooth never decays."

4. Americans, who presumably have the most brushed teeth of any people in the world, are notoriously subject to dental caries.

5. Since the dentists generally seem to support the commercial slogan that a "clean tooth never decays" the ordinary layman is encouraged to believe that he can save his teeth if only he will brush them thoroughly and regularly.

6. If one believes that one would be a goof to go and pay the dentist for cleaning, scaling, polishing and repairing any beginning cavities in the teeth at regular intervals.

That is the kind of neglect of the teeth by the middle and well-to-do classes for which I blame the dentists themselves. Likewise I hold the dentists largely responsible for the occurrence of pyorrhea—a great many instances, and for the same reasons.

I have a booklet "Save Your Teeth" I'm glad to send to any dentist gratis if he supplies a 1-cent stamped envelope bearing his address and if his letter indicates he has a degree. I have a pamphlet on "Pyorrhea" which any one may obtain for the asking, and a stamped addressed envelope to carry it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Bulimia.

Cousin, 29, college instructor, has enormous appetite, eats like a horse, yet still hungry. He looks pale and anemic, but seems to keep pretty well. Mother thinks he must have tapeworm. (P.C.L.)

Answer—Takes but a wee morsel to maintain a tapeworm in fine fettle for a week. Your cousin may have diabetes. He should have a complete medical examination and health test.

MY DAY: Recreation Classes Teach Youth Trades

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

OAKLAND, Cal., Wednesday.—Yesterday morning, in Los Angeles, I visited Judge Shontz's court. It is a court of the little people who have claims for sums of money under $50. I found it very interesting sitting beside her listening for a few minutes to their problems.

From there we visited the Assistance League, a really remarkable organization which is sponsored by a number of Los Angeles women. I gathered that Mrs. Hancock Banning is the most active and moving force. I saw a day nursery with the children actually at play out-of-doors and lunch in preparation; a place for the older boys to do craftwork and play games out-of-doors; a library, a girls' recreation club, and a welfare department where people are helped to get jobs and where the placement record is high.

We also visited the thrift shop, the craft shop, the sewing rooms and the tea room, where women interested in this charity earn much of the money which is given to the support of the other undertakings.

It seemed a very busy spot, spread out over quite an area, but full of hope for the betterment of the conditions of the people in that part of the city. This is indicated by the fact that juvenile delinquency has dropped 64 per cent since the establishment of the boys' and girls' recreation classes.

We went back to Mrs. Douglas' in time to see a really remarkable collection of craftwork done by the Mexican-American youngsters in NYA groups. Though weaving and ceramics have only been taught for three months, they would be a credit to workers of much longer experience. Finally, a last visit with young Mrs. James Roosevelt and a very quiet lunch before starting at 2 o'clock to drive to Stanford, Cal. It was nearly 195 miles and, in spite of gray skies, we had one or two glorious glimpses of fields of wild flowers.

In one place a sea of blue seemed to spread out before us. In another field, yellow and blue seemed to be the dominant colors. I had always heard of the beauty of these wild flowers in spring and, while they tell me I am not seeing them at their best at present, still I am extremely glad to carry away this vision of loveliness.

On our arrival, we drove around the very charming town of Hanford and admired the public buildings, schools and charming tree-lined streets with their attractive homes. After the lecture, we said good-bye to our kind hosts and took the night train for Oakland, where we are now about to board a plane on our way to Europe, Ore.

Tricks Make Public Speech Easy

By Lillian Mae.

If you're unused to public speaking an audience can terrify you!

But how different, how friendly, these faces can look to you if you know a little about public speaking.

Instead of taking your place on the platform with a timid hangdog air, walk out briskly and firmly. Bathe your audience in a big smile.

Don't start off on an apologetic note: "I hope you'll bear with me—"

Make your first remarks an eye-opener: "I defy any of you to take a walk in the lovely gardens of Charleston without thinking, 'What can I do to improve my own?'"

How to hold your audience all the way through? Call up specific pictures. Say "Alyssum, violas and verbenas," not vaguely "border planting." If you get stuck for a word, don't "er—er." Pause and think.

Then, if you practice tongue-twisters at home to improve your enunciation, if you take deep breathing exercises for your voice, you'll soon be sounding like a seasoned trouper.

Our 40-page booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN PUBLIC SPEAKING, tells how to develop your voice, prepare and deliver speeches effectively. Gives parliamentary rules, pleasing sample speeches for many occasions. Also has pointers for radio speakers.

Regular Time for Exercise Is Important for Results

By Ida Jean Kain.

Thinking about slimming is a pleasant form of daydreaming. Even though you are not getting anywhere, you are inclined to put good intentions on a footing with the accomplished fact.

One sure way to snap out of it is to have some candid camera shots taken without your good girdle and your Sunday best pose. Stand as you do when off guard so your figure will look its worst. If you are in real need of diet and exercise, the results will be such that you will want to take direct action. To keep from toying with the temptation to let things slide now and then, post the evidence on your mirror where your glance will fall on it often.

The less you have to think about exercise beforehand, the better. It helps to set a definite time for your daily dozen. The regularity tends to make it more or less automatic, like doing the dishes at 8:30. At 10 o'clock, you exercise.

So long as it is the same time every day, the hour is of no consequence. The only time not to exercise is immediately after a meal. You should wait an hour, preferably two. Exercising right after a meal won't keep the excess calories from turning into fat and it might give you indigestion.

The aim of a daily dozen is not to reduce. It won't help you to lose much weight, but it will give you a beautiful figure. You will scarcely believe your own eyes when you see the improvement that can be made over a period of time with just a little exercise every day. If you are accurate as to the position and movements, you can take it as slow and easy as you please.

Lying down exercises are twice as easy as the ones you take standing. You don't even have to hold yourself up! On your hands and knees, lie down on the floor and take a good, big stretch. Stretch and pull until you reach every lazy muscle. Relax, and stretch again.

Over on your back now and flex your knees with feet on the floor, and pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles and dig the small of the back down against the floor. That's an exercise that rests your back. From the same position, keep digging the back into the floor as you flex alternate knees up to chest.

Then sit up, clasp the arms about one knee and hug it to chest, and stretch the other leg straight out in front on the floor. Hold that position as you rock back and forth. Rock backward until shoulders are on floor, straight leg in air. Then rock forward to sitting position again.

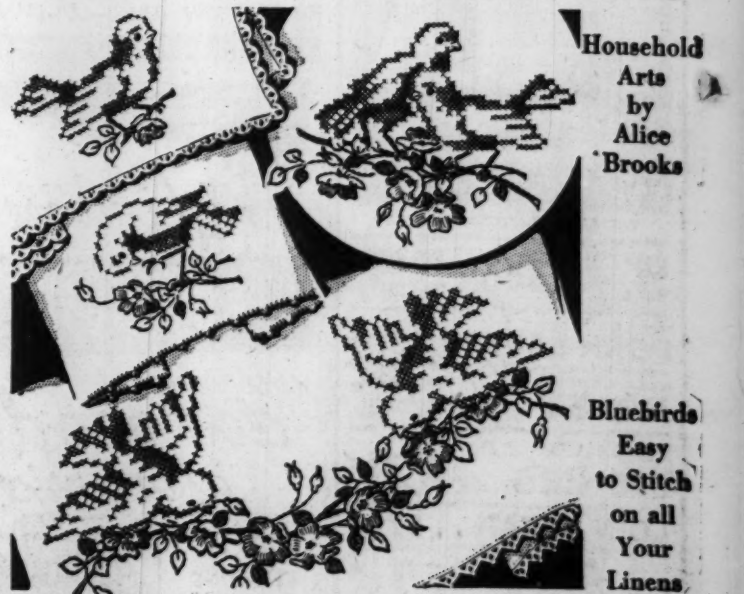

You couldn't ask for easier exercises than those.

If you need a diet, you'll find it no hardship to follow the new "Arch Protein Diet," which will be sent you on request for a stamped return envelope. Address request to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Today's Charm Tip

Don't voice aloud suspicions of their motives. Wait until you have undeniable proof. Thus, you avoid becoming a suspicious character yourself.

Mutual Broadcasting System Nears Agreement With ASCAP

Terms Mailed to 175 Stations Whose Approval Will Return 1,250,000 Songs to Airways After an Absence of 4 Months.

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—The Mutual Broadcasting System announced today it had reached an agreement with American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers on a proposal that may return 1,250,000 ASCAP-controlled songs to its airwaves shortly after an absence of four months.

WANTED HIS DIME,
TIFTON, Ga., May 1.—(AP)—When two customers drove out of a Sparks filling station without paying for two five-cent drinks, the resourceful merchant telephoned to the Tifton highway patrol station to have them stopped. He wanted his dime, he told the patrolman who answered the phone. A long distance call from Sparks to Tifton costs 20 cents.

Declaring the end of the radio-music war appeared imminent, Mutual said terms of the agreement had been mailed to its 175 members and affiliated stations for approval, with the stations being offered their choice of two plans to be effective for any period up to January 1, 1950.

These were for either a "blanket" or a "per program" license. Mutual's announcement said the network's board of directors favored the blanket formula because it would entail less book-keeping, but explained that as Mutual was a co-operative, non-profit organization each station would have a free choice.

Blanket license terms would include payment of a flat 3 per cent royalty to ASCAP for four years and thereafter 3 1-2 per cent until 1950.

The per-program plan would end December 31, 1949, or any shorter term at the election of the station, and among other details would include payment of a license fee on commercial programs ranging from 10 per cent down to 1-2 per cent, depending on the type of program.

COMMERCIAL HIGH BAND—Framed by pretty drum majorettes, this is the snappy, red-and-white clad Commercial High band which will be on exhibition Friday night, May 16, in the third annual Greater Atlanta Music Festival at Grant Field—the big free event sponsored by

Atlanta Given Instructions in Air Protection

How To Shield Civilians Told in Government Booklet.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON, May 1.—What Atlanta and other major cities of the country should do for the protection of civilians from air raids in the event of war was outlined here this week by Director Frank Bane, of the division of state and local co-operation, office of emergency management.

With a view to avoiding any public hysteria, Director Bane, in releasing the instructions for publication, hastened to admonish that there is no necessity for constructing any shelters at the present time. At the same time, it was emphasized that it might be well for city officials and civic groups to be giving the subject consideration.

Atlanta, like Washington and most of the other major cities of the country, has no air-raid shelters of any kind—not even subways—which will make the ultimate task even more difficult. Gateway of Southeast.

Officials did not say so in this week's release, but Atlanta, because of its rail and air transportation gateway to the southeastern area, might be an important objective in any wholesale bombing operations by long-range bombers in some future war.

The information on aerial attacks and means of defense were contained in a pamphlet, "Civil Defense Protective Construction," prepared by the War Department with the aid of federal agencies. "The issuance of this bulletin," said Mr. Bane, "is not the signal for starting work on any of the protective structures described. This is the time for careful analysis of what the needs might be for the protection of the civilian population from air attack, and for laying plans, even though we hope they will never have to be put into effect."

Civil officials and engineers, however, should consider methods and plans for providing the shelters promptly should the need ever arise, Mr. Bane said.

The pamphlet, based largely on experience of European cities in the present war, includes a discussion of the weapons used in air raids and plans for protecting civilians, buildings, utilities and industries. Much of the information is of a technical character.

Air-Raid Shelters.
Air-raid shelters, the bulletin points out, should have many entrances, at least two exits, and a passage that admits persons but bars poisonous gas. They likewise must provide the customary conveniences and first-aid facilities.

Local conditions should determine whether external shelters should be built or provision be made within existing buildings. The bulletin points out that subways in the United States, in general, have too shallow roofs to offer adequate protection.

Shelters, where possible, should be designed for peacetime utility as well as wartime protection, the pamphlet suggests. They might be used as garages, storage sheds, or bank vaults, it explains.

Plans Are Laid For Intensified Health Care

Revitalized Supervision for Young People Is Scheduled.

Because of the large number of young men found to be physically unfit for military service, the State Department of Public Health yesterday laid plans for an intensified program of health supervision for the young people of Georgia.

The need for such a revitalized program was emphasized in a telegram to Dr. Joe P. Bowdoin, chief of the state division of child hygiene, from Katherine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor.

Principal recommendations to be carried out in Georgia follow:

1. That existing services for maternal and child health should in no case be curtailed, but should be maintained at the highest possible level of efficiency.
2. That additional maternal and child health services should be provided, particularly for military and industrial defense areas and areas suffering loss of personnel.
3. That every local, full-time health unit should provide at least the following basic medical services for mothers and children: Prenatal clinics, child health conferences, and medical examinations of school children, developed by the health department in co-operation with departments of education.

4. That additional services should be provided as rapidly as possible to assure complete maternity care for all patients who cannot obtain such care through their own resources, continuous health supervision for all children, and medical, surgical and dental care as needed to assure the health of infants and children.

SNAP IN IT.
CAMP STEWART, Ga., May 1. (AP)—Sergeant Charlie Pierce, of B Battery, 20th Georgia Regiment, certainly aimed to please. "When the inspectors arrive," he told his fellow soldiers, "I'll snap to attention like a new garter."

May Festival Set Tomorrow At Agnes Scott

Jean Dennison Will Reign as Queen in English Pageant.

The traditional English May festival will be reproduced complete with queen, Maypole dance, hobbyhorses and pickpockets, in an original pageant, "On an English Green," at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the Agnes Scott campus. A cast of 125, all students of Agnes Scott, will present the program, based on a scenario written by Neva Jackson, a junior at the college.

Jean Dennison, daughter of Professor H. E. Dennison, of Georgia Tech and the Georgia Evening College, will reign as May Queen. The May court will include Val Nielsen, Martha Dunn, June Boykin, Nina Broughton, Ann Chambliss, Dusty Hance, Margaret Sheffall, Betty Moore, Ann Hilsman, Leona Leavitt, Martha Rhodes and Clara Johnson.

In charge of the program is Miss Eugenia Dozier, of the Agnes Scott physical education department, and a student committee headed by Sarah Rainey, of Decatur.
